SENATE SEEKS NEW CHANNELS FOR REVENUES

Bill Will Reach Chamber This Week; Early Action Promised.

HOUSE WILL RESUME DEBATE TOMORROW

McDuffie and Byrns to Ask Record Vote on Pay Cut and Army-Navy.

(Associated Press.)

With the $200,000,000 economy legislation all but wrecked in the turbulent House, Senate chieftains yesterday turned disappointedly toward the possibility of being forced to find more revenue through additions to the billion-dollar tax bill.

Unitedly, however, leaders from both ends of the Capitol promised prompt disposition of the vital but unpopular budget balancing legislation. Speed is essential if the goal of adjournment by June 10—allowing but 34 more working days and nights—is to be attained.

The revenue-raising bill will reach the Senate some time this week from the rapid working finance committee, but some little delay may entail as a result of the probable necessity for seeking out revenue to replace that thrown out of the economy bill.

Resume Debate Tomorrow.

Still fighting for the remaining provisions of the ruined retrenchment measure, House leaders will resume debate on it tomorrow. They will try also to retrieve some of the $117,000,000 in economies stricken out by calling later for roll call votes on the eliminated provisions.

Senator Watson, of Indiana, the Republican leader, and Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the minority pilot, both declared yesterday for prompt action on the tax measure once it reaches the Senate. Each believed his party would support that course.

The finance committee has yet to pass on the controversial stock transfer levy and admissions tax. A modification of the stock transfer levy—so bitterly opposed by Wall street—is in prospect, but there is no likelihood that it will be eliminated entirely.

Import Tax on Rubber.

Where to turn for more revenue is perplexing the committee, which already has decided to tap pari-mutuel race tickets as one new source. An import tax on rubber estimated to yield $50,000,000 annually also is considered.

Reduction in expenditures by $300,000,000 was conceded to be necessary to make the $1,000,000,000 revenue measure passed by the House balance the 1933 budget.

Congress is making considerable reductions in the regular appropriation

Dinner Guest Held In Loss of Jewels

Three Bracelets, Valued at $2,350 Taken; Police Quiz Woman.

A Saturday dinner guest of Mrs. Julia Tilton, 3630 Sixteenth street northwest, was being questioned by police last night with regard to the disappearance of three gem-studded bracelets worth $2,350 from the pocket of the former's bathrobe.

Mrs. Tilton said the guest, a woman friend, left after a short after-dinner chat and the loss was not discovered until after midnight, when she recollected placing the ornaments in the garment and desired to lock them up. Police were immediately notified.

The guest of Mrs. Tilton was arrested yesterday upon information furnished by the complainant. No formal charges were placed against the woman being interrogated.

Mrs. Massie To Testify in Attack Trial

Honolulu, May 1 (A.P.).—Robert Bell, of New York, gave assurance today that Mrs. Thalia Massie, his niece and the wife of the convicted "honor" slayer of Joseph Kahahawai, will testify at the retrial of four Hawaiians charged with assaulting her last September 12.

Bell is the brother of Mrs. Granville Fortescue, who with her son-in-law, Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, U. S. N., and two naval enlisted men was convicted Friday of killing Kahahawai in revenge for the attack.

It had been reported that Mrs. Massie, because of the attitude of John C. Kelley, prosecutor who obtained the convictions, would resist reappearing in the assault case.

Bell said today, however, Mrs. Massie would undergo the ordeal again. The first trial of the case resulted in a divided jury.

During the first trial, which began November 18 and lasted three weeks, Mrs. Massie's name was withheld by all Hawaiian newspapers except a Honolulu Japanese daily, which carried the story in full in both its English and Japanese sections.

The alleged assailants of Mrs. Massie, who have been free on bond,

POSTOFFICE BUDGET SLASH HIT BY ODDIE

Cites Big Reduction in Jobs, Including 307 in City, in Attack on Plan.

If the 10 per cent reduction in the appropriation for the Postoffice Department recently ordered by the Senate becomes effective, 58,277 employes will be dismissed throughout the country. Of this number, 307 will be in the District. In addition, daily mail deliveries will be reduced.

This was the prediction of Senator Oddie (Republican), of Nevada, chairman of the subcommittee on the Treasury-Postoffice appropriation bill, in a statement issued last night. Senator Oddie said he intends in the near future to ask the Senate to reconsider the reduction.

In the event the reduction is effected, 652 employes will be dismissed from the postal service in Maryland, 1,045 in Virginia, and 490 in West Virginia. "In the large cities," Senator Oddie's statement said, "the department advises me that carrier service in the business section would be reduced from four to two deliveries daily; in the residential districts deliveries would be reduced from two to one a day.

"The department points out that for each consolidation of two rural routes one carrier must be dismissed; in an even larger number of instances, rural service would necessarily be curtailed from daily to three times a week. In many small villages carrier service would be dispensed with and patrons would be forced back to the old custom of getting their mail at the postoffice."

In the District the dismissals would be as follows: Clerks, 91; city carriers, 169; railway postal clerks, 36; vehicle employes, 8; rural carriers, 1; rural routes consolidated, 1, and rural routes reduced to triweekly service, 1.

Reynolds Is Picked By Socialist Labor

Former Steamfitter to Run for President; Paints Glowing Picture.

New York, May 1 (A.P.).—Vernie L. Reynolds, a former steamfitter, was nominated today by the Socialist Labor party as its candidate for President of the United States. J. W. Aiken, of Boston, was nominated for Vice President.

Reynolds, the candidate for Vice President in 1928, in his acceptance address foresaw a "golden opportunity" for the Socialist Labor party in the coming elections. "This year we won't have to predict the collapse of the capitalist system," he said, "for there is evidence of that breakdown all around us."

The party's platform in past years demanded the abolition of private ownership in favor of collective ownership and control of property, "ending for all time the destructive class wars which to now have torn humanity asunder."

HUGE OIL THEFT BARED IN TEXAS; SEVERAL SEIZED

213 Separate Charges Filed, With 1,000,000 Barrels Stolen.

THREE GUARDSMEN REPORT BRIBE OFFER

Rangers Trace By-Pass Line From One of Wells to Refinery.

Longview, Tex., May 1 (A.P.).—More than a score of men faced criminal charges tonight in the wholesale theft of crude oil from wells of the East Texas field.

John E. Taylor, district attorney of Gregg County, asserted completion of an investigation begun when three National Guardsmen reported they had been bribed to overlook night operations of the thieves would "shake the foundations of East Texas."

Rangers and troopers began the round-up in the mushroom oil town of Gladwater. Others were arrested here on theft and conspiracy charges. Twenty-three men in all were named.

E. M. Daniels, deputy supervisor of the Texas Railroad Commission, civil agency in charge of proration enforcement, and Paxton Gray, former deputy supervisor, are among those held.

213 Separate Charges.

Gray is a brother-in-law of Fred Upchurch, assiston attorney general. Others arrested include M. C. Torbert, Gladwater agent for the Texas & Pacific Railway, and J. T. Harris and C. Harris, Center, Tex., oil operators.

A total of 213 separate charges of theft were filed in the court of E. B. Penick, justice of the peace.

Military authorities said more than 1,000,000 barrels of oil had been stolen from five Gladewater wells in the last seven months by means of hidden by-passes.

One on Church Property.

One of the wells, on the property of the First Baptist Church of Gladewater, gave oil in such quantities that pressure in offset wells was reduced 15 pounds in 10 days. Officers said the other wells were owned by individuals.

Rangers traced a by-pass line from one well to a refinery. Military officials said an average of ten cars of stolen oil had been shipped nightly to refineries in Waco, Dallas, Eagleford and Chalmette, La.

Col. L. S. Davidson, commandant of the military forces sent into the east Texas field by Gov. R. S. Sterling last summer to enforce proration, said the three soldiers who reported the bribe offer were paid a total of $1,400 in 95 days.

They said the rate was 3 cents a barrel.

Six Persons Killed In Crossing Crash

Victims in Wisconsin Were Members of Two Brothers' Families.

Marshfield, Wis., May 1 (A.P.).—Six persons, members of farm families near here, were killed today when an automobile in which they were passengers was demolished at a grade crossing by a crack Soo Line passenger train, making its first run between Chicago and Minneapolis.

The dead—Irvin Riemer, 32; his wife, 30; their two children, Donald, 13, and Louis, 3; Joseph Riemer, 47; his wife, 37.

Gwendolyn Riemer, 8, daughter of Joseph, suffered a broken back and physicians said she likely would die.

The acident wiped out the entire Irvin Riemer family.

The Riemer brothers and their families were returning home from a visit with another brother, W. C. Riemer. The accident occurred not far from their homes at Rudolph, Wis., near here. The train halted and the dead were taken to Spencer, Wis., and the injured girl brought to a hospital here. An inquest has been ordered.

Auto of Mexican Envoy Fells Two Pedestrians

The automobile of the Ambassador from Mexico, Dr. José Manuel Puig Casauranc, last night knocked down two pedestrians at Sixteenth and Q streets northwest. The Ambassador and Senora de Puig Casauranc and their son, Senor Carlos, were passengers in the car.

Both the Ambassador and Senora de Puig Casauranc assured themselves that the pedestrians were uninjured before they continued on their ride. The pedestrians refused to give their names. Lucius Harris, 37 years old, colored, of 1913 Second street northwest, the chauffeur, was operating the car.

Old Goal Is Attained As Britons Split Atom

Lord Rutherford, World Famous Scientist, Announces Accomplishment of Two Cambridge Physicists; Effect of Feat Still in Doubt.

London, May 1 (A.P.).—Lord Rutherford, one of the world's foremost scientists, today disclosed that two young Cambridge physicists had achieved one of the greatest goals of all scientific research.

They split an atom.

(This is not to be confused with the accomplishment of Dr. Carl Anderson at the California Institute of Technology, who devised an electromagnet last year which made possible the photographing of an atom's nucleus while it was being dissipated by the cosmic ray.)

In revealing the details he termed a "discovery of great scientific importance," Lord Rutherford said the successful investgators of the atom were Drs. J. D. Cockroft and E. T. S. Walton, both of whom have been working on their problem for several years with special apparatus erected under the supervision of Lord Rutherford himself.

Optimistic scientists long have hoped for the split atom, some contending that when this feat was accomplished a boundless source of energy would be made available to the world.

On the other hand there have been some timorous extremists who feared that man's accomplishment of splitting an atom would mean the hurling of the world to destruction.

"It is difficult to say to what this discovery may lead," Dr. Rutherford explained today.

"Up to the present the experiments have not yielded anything which will be of immediate commercial value. I have seen it stated that this discovery means we shall be able to produce an immense accumulatino of added electrical energy for commercial purposes.

"But we can not claim that for our experiments up to the present for the simple reason that for every particle of energy we get it requires millions of particles to make it effective.

"The experiments, however, are of great scientific interest and are

RECORD TURNOVER IN CONGRESS SEEN

34 Senators Out for Seats Again; Ten of House Have Lost in Primaries.

(Associated Press.)

A record turnover in House and Senate membership that will alter vastly the congressional complexion after next March 4 is indicated by the many unusual factors and issues rearing prominently in the primary and general election campaigns.

Already much uneasiness has been manifested by House members as a result of early primary elections that have placed nearly a dozen on the lame duck list.

Although Senate incumbents thus far have come through the early primaries in good order it is generally conceded on Capitol Hill that some of the 34 to seek reelection will meet contentious political resistance.

The House is certain to lose 27 of its present members through the reapportionment that becomes effective with the Seventy-third Congress. By the failure of several States gaining and losing seats to redistrict, many members will have to run at large.

Eleven States take 27 seats from 21 States. The effect of the reapportionment already has been felt by the Pennsylvania, Nebraska and Illinois delegations, although the latter State failed to redistrict on its previous basis.

Many representatives who in previous years have escaped having opponents in the primaries, are engaged in bitter campaigns. Already in many Southern and Midwestern States, where nomination virtually means election, there are numerous contests.

Contestants of the incumbents are attacking their records made in the House this session on the Hoover moratorium, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the Beck-Linthicum resubmission of the eighteenth

Stimson Nears Cannes; Will Sail on Wednesday

Grenoble, France, May 1 (A.P.).—Henry L. Stimson, the American Secretary of State, arrived by automobile tonight from Geneva and will leave for Cannes tomorrow morning. He will embark Wednesday for the United States.

Mr. Stimson decided last week to go home after he twice was unsuccessful in an effort ot break deadlocks affecting two important problems here, Franco-German relations and the Franco-American disarmament impasse. Premier Andre Tardieu, of France, said he was unable to come for either of the two conferences arranged to discuss these problems.

MARYLAND PRIMARY WILL BE HELD TODAY

Hoover Faces First Clear-Cut Contest, With France Opposing Him.

(Associated Press.)

The free-for-all contest for the Democratic presidential nomination swings this week to California, where tomorrow Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Alfred E. Smith and Speaker John N. Garner will clash for 44 delegates and the tremendous prestige that will go with victory.

Another batch of 44 delegates, a majority of which are almost certain to line up behind the dominant candidacy of Gov. Roosevelt, will be named during the week in Alabama, South Dakota and Rhode Island.

On the Republican side, with 153 delegates to be named in the first week of May's big presidential calendar, President Hoover stands to win another big block to add to his 701 claimed and pledged convention votes, 60 of which were instructed for him in conventions Saturday in Minnesota, Arizona, Nevada, Mississippi and Tennessee.

The President, however, faces his first clear-cut contest in a precon-

Polish Seizure of Danzig Held Balked by France

London (Monday), May 2 (U.P.).—A Danzig dispatch to the Express today said that the highest tension prevailed there following reports that Poland allegedly had completed plans to seize the free city of Danzig Sunday, but that Poland's ally, France, was believed to have intervened at the eleventh hour to halt the coup.

Polish warships at Gydnia had been reported ready to steam into Danzig Harbor in defiance of the League of Nations. The Polish corridor at present is said to resemble an armed camp. Poland has strengthened her garrison at Graubenz and established new garrisons at Tschew and Neustagt, the dispatch said.

Lightning Blamed for Fire Causing $20,000 Damage

Lightning is believed to have caused the fire which last night destroyed several buildings on the dairy farm of Lawson King, on the Rockville-Gaithersburg pike, causing damage estimated at $20,000.

More than 4,000 spectators were drawn to the fire in 1,200 automobiles, which caused a traffic jam of major proportions on the highway. Lack of water hampered the firemen, and they were forced to haul water in milk cans from Rockville and Gaithersburg.

Mr. King discovered the fire. Before the firemen could get the fire under control it had destroyed the cow barn, stable, a corn house and several small buildings. All live stock was saved. Mr. King's home and the sterilizing plant were saved from the flames. Recently the owner had had all the buildings renovated and painted.

Firemen were summoned from Rockville, Bethesda, Kensington, Sandy Spring and Gaithersburg. The water hauled in cans from nearby towns in milk trucks was used to replenish booster pumps on the engines.

RAIN CUTS SPIRIT OF 70,000 IN NEW YORK

German Communists Assail Japan and Defy Hitler; Premier Is Injured.

(Copyright, 1932, by the United Press.)

Social revolutionists observed May Day throughout the world yesterday with a cheerful absence of physical conflict, and only a few threatening demonstrations against their traditional enemies, the police.

In a year when economic chaos and unemployment was popularly supposed to stir class rancor to fever heat, and millions of hitherto bourgeois workers had been counted on to swell the armies of discontented, both European and American evidences of flaming revolutionary emotion were lacking.

Rain, falling on the bared heads of demonstrators with less force but more persuasiveness than a policeman's club, dampened the enthusiasm for revolt in the breasts of 70,000 New York marchers, and turned their flags and spirits from a deep red to a pale and streaked pink.

Scattered Casualties.

From London, Berlin, Paris, Madrid and South American capitals cabled stories of the day's celebration were repetitions of the peaceful New York show. There were no barricades, no clashes between the masses and the military, no threats of storming the strongholds of capitalism by force, and only a few scattering casualties due to purely local disorders.

Two Communists were killed in a Polish village, but Warsaw was quiet. One extremist was fatally injured at Cordoba, Spain. Several were seriously injured in both cities, but a holiday spirit prevailed through the remainder of the two countries.

More than 100,000 Communists in a sea of red flags gathered in front of the imperial palace in Berlin to hear Ernst Thaelmann, their leader, perdict that a new world war is approaching. Defying Adolph Hitler's prophecy that the last Red May Day had been held in Berlin, the Comhunists held an impressive demonstration, stretching for a half mile in front of the palace.

German Reds Hit Japan.

Thaelmann luridly described how "Japanese divisions, aided by Russian White Guards, are gathering on the border of the Soviet Union." He was cheered when he proclaimed that in case Russia is attacked, German and other international workers would "march together in the Red

Three Found Slain In Bay State Home

Mystery Veils Manner in Which Man and Two Women Were Shot.

Quincy, Mass., May 1 (A.P.).—Three persons were found shot to death today in the home of Edward W. Dutton here. They were Mr. Dutton, 68 years old; his wife, Mrs. Ida May Dutton, 62, and his stepdaughter, Mrs. Willington Bartell, 38, divorcee.

An old-fashioned revolver containing five loaded cartridges and one discharged cartridge, was found in Dutton's hand. Dr. Frederick E. Jones, medical examiner, said he inclined to the opinion it was a case of double murder and suicide. But both he and the police were puzzled by their failure to find any discharged cartridges in addition to that in the revolver.

The shooting was discovered by 8-year-old Willington Bartell, son of one of the victims. His mother apparently had been shot while in the back yard, whence a trail of blood led to the kitchen, where the body was found. Mrs. Dutton was found dead on a bed, upstairs, also fully dressed. Dutton lay on a couch downstairs. All three had been shot on the right side of the head. Dutton had died much later than the women, however.

Storm Blocks Boat Contact In Kidnaping

Norfolk, Va., May 1 (U.P.).—The yacht Marcon returned to the naval base tonight, having failed to contact the ship carrying representatives of thoes believed to have the kidnaped Lindbergh baby.

John Hughes Curtis, chief of the prominent Norfolk group negotiating with the supposed kidnapers, was aboard the yacht, as were Edwin Bruce, Elmira, N. Y., resident, who has been aiding Curtis, and Lieut. Richard, U. S. N., who has been Curtis' pilot on various airplane trips.

Bad weather prevented the contact with the other vessel, it was said. The Marcon, which left here Friday, was understood to have been 57 miles out to sea.

It is planned to take the Marcon to sea between 5 and 7 a. m. tomorrow, it was said, after Capt. F. H. Lackmann left the boat for a short visit at his home and after Curtis had gone to his home to get a few hours sleep.

The weather here was still bad, but was improving.

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was not aboard the Marcon and has not been here in the past week, it was said

ACCUSED POLICEMAN ENDS HIS OWN LIFE

Officer Charged With Drunken Driving Is Found Dead Near Drury, Md.

James W. Casey, Washington policeman who had been recommended for dismissal from the force after charges of driving while drunk had been placed against him, was found dead yesterday near Drury, Md., with a bullet wound in his head.

A coroner's jury, impaneled by Magistrate Thomas John Hall, decided that he had died by his own hand. Casey had been shot once behind the ear, the bullet coming out the front of the skull. His body was lying about 30 yards from the Solomons Island road, and his car was parked on the road several miles beyond Marlboro. He was found by Elliott Owens, jr., who noticed the car had been parked there since Saturday and investigated.

On March 23 a car driven by Casey was in collision with another automobile near the Soldiers' Home. Casey was charged with driving while drunk and suspended from the force pending trial. His case was continued in court while the Trial Board considered charges against him. The Trial Board recommended that he be dismissed from the force.

Casey, who lived at 941 K street northwest, is survived by his wife. About a year ago he was fined $100 by the Trial Boaard for failing to stop after an accident and conduct unbecoming an officer.

He said also he would ask for a recount of votes in several divisions, charging lavish use of money by Beck supporters.

Miller Kidnapers Hunted in Chicago

Wealthy Joliet Grocer Is Reported Ready to Pay $50,000.

Joliet, Ill., May 1 (A.P.).—Search for the kidnapers of Gustav Miller, 22, shifted to Chicago's gangdom today as the youth's father, a wealthy wholesale grocer, reportedly waited with $50,000 ready for ransom money.

The father, Max. Miller, was reported to have received a telephone call today from the West Side of Chicago, in the district frequented by the "42" gang and other criminals. Miller refused to discuss the abduction, even with Joliet police.

Young Miller disappeared Thursday night after he left the home of his fiancee, Catherine Mesirow. The Miller family received telephone instructions the following day telling them where to find his automobile. Although Miller refused cooperation of local authorities, he was reported to have sought assistance from the "Secret Six," anticrime organization in Chicago, which has run down kidnapers from coast to coast.

RADICALS SHOW SLIGHT GAINS IN FRENCH VOTING

Tardieu and Other Party Leaders Returned in Heavy Balloting.

TRANQUILLITY MARKS MAY DAY ELECTION

Fate of Present Government Hinges on Outcome of Many Run-Offs.

Paris, Monday, May 2 (A.P.).—Returns from 500 of the 615 constituencies in yesterday's election to the Chamber of Deputies gave the political groups of the Left a slight gain, with 283 seats thrown into the run-off election next Sunday, which grew more vitally important in determining the fate of the Tardieu government.

On the first ballot, 217 deputies were elected, the Radical Socialists showing a gain of four seats, the Socialist a gain of three and loss of two.

Supporters of the Left claimed a strategical position on the second ballot. The newspaper Le Matin said the slide toward the Left was fairly pronounced as the returns increased. The standing of the parties was:

Republicans	64
Left Republicans	25
Independent Republican Radicals	20
Radicals and Radical Socialists	55
Republican Socialists	12
Socialists	89
Comunists	None

Tardieu's Party Loses.

The Republicans of the Left, Premier Tardieu's party, showed the largest loss. They lost eight seats and gained one.

Premier Tardieu, who must look to the new chamber for support of his government in momentous negotiations on reparations, war debts and disarmament this summer, was reelected along with all the other dominant party figures. Among them are the leaders of the two strongest opposition parties, Edouard Herriot, of the Radical Socialists, and Leon Blum, of the Socialists.

Other prominent members returned to their seats include former Premier Paul Painleve; Louis Marin, pronounced Nationalist; Charles Guernier, minister of public works; Pierre Etienne Flandin, finance minister; Fernand Bouisson, president of the last chamber, and Louis Rollin, minister of commerce.

Two members of the Chamber of Deputies who are familiar to Americans were reelected.

They are Georges Scapini, blind veteran, who was guest of the American Legion some years ago in the United States, and Raymond Patenotre, who was born at Atlantic City, N. J., 32 years ago.

M. Patenotre is a son of Jules Patenotre, former French Ambassador to Washington, and was a newspaper publisher in Philadelphia until a few years ago.

Other prominent members reelected include:

Edouard Daladier, who has been minister of the interior and of war in past cabinets, and who attempted

SEARCH IS PUSHED FOR 2 LOST CADETS

No Clew to Whereabouts of Capital Youth and His Companion Canoeist.

West Point, N. Y., May 1 (A.P.).—Two second-year cadets of the United States Military Academy were missing tonight following the discovery of their overturned canoe in the Hudson River. The students are Alan J. Light, son of Samuel K. Light, of Washington, D. C., and Leo A. Skeim, whose nearest relative is listed as Mrs. Russell Needham, Valley City, N. Dak.

The cadets set out in a heavy pontoon canoe yesterday and were last seen near Bannerman's Island, north of the academy, headed toward Storm King Mountain. A strong wind was whipping the river.

Their canoe was discovered drifting upside down near Newburgh early today. Word of the discovery did not reach the Military Academy until this afternoon, more than 24 hours after the cadets set out on the river.

West Point officers, who had been directing an intensive search for the youths, went to the scene immediately and identified the canoe. Pending their arrival it had been pulled ashore two miles north of the Newburgh Yacht Club.

The search then was centered in that vicinity. An Army amphibian plane piloted by Lieut. J. M. Welkert, cruised up and down from Bannerman's Island northward while canoe squads manned by fellow cadets explored the river edges and land patrols scouted along both banks.

The capsized canoe was found by a trackwalker of the West Shore Railroad. Unaware of the search, he neglected to inform Newburgh police until several hours later.

Both Light and Skeim were qualified swimmers. Before setting out on the river they had donned bathing suits and sweaters, leaving their cadet uniforms at the canoe house on the north dock.

L. V. Dreyspool and William Lamkay, uncles of Cadet Light, arrived late today to assist in the search.

32 of Preschool Age To Be Examined Today

The preschool round-up of children will bring 32 of them to John Quincy Adams School today to be examined for minor physical defects which may be corrected before they enter school next fall.

Dr. N. Norman Smiler and Dr. Eugene Taylor, as well as two hygienists and two dentists from Georgetown University, will conduct the clinic. They will be assisted by the following members of the Parent-Teacher Association: Mrs. Roy Srygley, Mrs. Jesse Lucas, Mrs. William Malloy, Mrs. Jesse Smith and Mrs. D. Rus. The examination, for children below the school age, is a part of the regular child health day work.

STORM PREVENTS KIDNAPER CONTACT

in answer to various reports that the father of the kidnaped baby had been taking an active part in the effort to make contact with the kidnapers from Norfolk.

The sudden return of Curtis created great excitement in Norfolk, where rumors have been current that the baby was about to be recovered through the efforts of Curtis and two other Norfolk negotiators.

The gates of the United States Naval Base were closed and sentinels were on guard. Officers seeking to enter the base late tonight were refused admission to their quarters, leading to reports that the naval base was to be used for the last stage of the negotiations with the kidnapers.

Curtis seemed to show a measure of satisfaction on his return despite his extreme fatigue. He was unshaven, his clothing was rumpled, collar wilted and his face was reddened as by the wind at sea or as a result of an airplane trip.

Federal agents from four cities converged on Norfolk tonight to question three men held on charges of conspiracy to violate laws, but who were arrested by local police for investigation in the kidnaping.

The men held are Robert V. Stark, Pittsburgh; Eddie R. Anderson, 24, Palm Beach, Fla., and Henry R. Singleton, 37, Little River, S. C.

Federal agents from Norfolk, Washington and Charleston, S. C., questioned the men for two hours at the city jail this afternoon. It was learned that a Department of Justice man from Detroit is in Norfolk and a New York Justice Department man is expected here tonight.

The Federal agents from Charleston are N. W. Vick and H. P. Clary. They drove all night. They are prohibition men from the Department of Justice. A Department of Justice man from the Bureau of Investigation, not concerned in liquor law violations, arrived by plane this morning. He gave his name as W. A. Blatchley, but indicated it might not be his real one. The name of the New York man, also of the Bureau of Investigation, is not yet known, nor is that of the Detroit operative.

Questioning of the men held has revealed nothing except the information that they are here "looking for a job" and that they are fishermen.

Three other men, who were arrested last night by local police and said by Federal men to be linked with these held, were at liberty today, and returned to the Monticello Hotel, where they have been registered for a month off and on.

Hopewell, N. J., May 1 (U.P.).—Conflicting answers were given tonight to questions regarding the whereabouts of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, who had been reported absent from his home for five days in connection with the search for his kidnaped son.

First, a man who wished to see Col Lindbergh was told the aviator was at home and that he might see him if he could show sufficient reason for doing so. This information came through Inspector Harry Walsh, of the State police, on duty at the Lindbergh home. Later, another member of the State police at the home said that the aviator had not returned.

Set of Marriage Rules Proves Poor Peace Pact

By JOHN J. DALY

ONE of the ultra-modern women, seeking to end an estrangement with her husband, handed him a set of rules and regulations. They came to her through prayer, she told him.

Even in the light of all this the husband refused to sign on the dotted line.

The ultimatum was this:

He had to attend church regularly and give up the habit of lying a-bed late Sunday morning, playing around the golf course all afternoon and going out to a friend's house at night.

His income had to be increased to $10,000 a year by the time he reached 50, though in the thirties the depression had carried him so low he felt like a flat tire.

* * * *

SHE and he should be able to "come and go" as they pleased, without explanation, since he usually went the even tenor of his way and said nothing, while she, if she just stepped down to the corner drug store for a coke, had almost to face trial by judge and jury, the husband functioning as both agencies.

Relatives should not be permitted to interfere, in-laws becoming outlaws, but a little consideration should be given the wife's parents because of their advanced age.

It was demanded, under the edict, that he should be gentle, be kind, be fair to her, and not unreasonable, and that he should "never divorce me under any conditions without my consent."

* * * *

SHE said that she did not love him. He, in his turn, said that he really loved her, but he refused to be bound by a set of rules. So they have decided to go their own separate ways down the road of life.

It is, of course, the tendency of the times.

Matrimony, these days, is not so much a case of love, honor and obey, as it is, "You go your way, I'll go mine, and whenever we meet again may the best man win."

The cynics figure that the best man won when he started the trek to the altar and then bade the bride goodby just before the bridegroom started on his honeymoon.

U. S. REPORT LAUDS CREDIT OF PANAMA

Republic's Business Integrity Advanced in Advice to Cultivate Market.

(Associated Press.)

Panama's reputation for business stability and credit integrity is rated by Commerce Department reports as better today than that of "any other country in South or Central America, with one possible exception."

Without naming the exception the report pointed to the advantages to be derived from cultivation of the Panamanian markets by American exporters.

The importance of the presence of Army, Navy and civilian Canal Zone personnel to the Panama merchant was said to be of the greatest. Tourist traffic to Panama, the report said, has been increasing steadily, although individuals are spending less money in the bazaars.

Invisible items that make up for the apparent unfavorable Panamanian trade balance were said to be the considerable sums spent annually in Panama by the canal and Panama Railroad employes and heavy expenditures by Navy and Army men stationed in the Zone. These amounts run to millions yearly, but do not show on official trade balances.

"It should be a matter of great encouragement," the report added, "to American exporters to remember that Panama is outstanding in its absence of problems involving dollar exchange, bankruptcies, moratoria, complicated collections, liquidations and revolutions. The number of cases of unethical business practices is very few, and, for the most part, unimportant.

"Every precaution should be taken in all transactions which require the granting of credits, but at present stocks are, for the most part, low and business, it is believed, is being conducted on a sound basis.

"The present period is without parallel an opportunity for American exporters to secure the confidence of their Panamanian representatives by showing some understanding of their problems, of which there still remain many, and by cooperating with them in finding a solution."

Ricardo Jimenez Heads Costa Rica.

San Jose, Costa Rica, May 1 (U.P.).—Ricardo Jimenez was designated as first vice president by a vote of congress today. After May 8 he will exercise the duties of president of the republic for a four-year term, because of the failure to elect a president in the regular election February 14. Three candidates failed to secure a majority in the popular election and a dissatisfied faction started a revolution which was soon stamped out by the government. Ricardo Jimenez served as president from 1924 to 1928.

Santiago, Chile, May 1 (A.P.).—The first Latin American labor conference opened here today with delegates present from Chile, Peru, Paraguay, Bolivia, Colombia and Guatemala. PARADE WILL OPEN HEALTH PROGRAMS

Dances and Pageants to Be Among Features Today at Schools.

Children of Washington will pay tribute today, on playgrounds and in schoolrooms, to the Creator's most treasured gift to man—health.

The celebration will be in recognition of Child Health Day, May Day, and the George Washington Bicentennial. Parents may bring children to clinics throughout the city for free examinations.

The youngest boys and girls, those up to 10 years of age, will have use of the city's playgrounds from 1:30 o'clock until 3. The programs will begin with a health parade. Special exercises, games, novelty health races and a display of kindergarten work will follow.

Older children will have freedom of the playgrounds from 3:30 o'clock to 5:30. Baseball, schlag ball and other games will be played. Buttons will be awarded to winners.

May Festival at Wheatley.

Students of the Wheatley School will present a May festival and health pageant, featuring early American games and dances, covering the period from 1732 to 1932, at 1 o'clock this afternoon at the school.

The setting will be May Day at Mount Vernon. The program will be opened with Washington greeting his friends and then Nellie Custis will be seen crowning the May Queen. A flowers dance before the queen will follow. Kindergarten children will enact these scenes.

A French minuet will be presented by the Rhythmic Dancing Club. First grade children will depict old English games such as seesaw and ride and cock horse. Second grade youngsters will dance a colonial minuet.

Third grade pupils will demonstrate an Indian corn husking dance and an English court dance, while the fourth grade will present a Virginia reel, setting up exercises for continentals and an American folk dance, "Jump Jim Crow."

Fifth Grade Dance.

The fifth grade will give an American pioneer dance and an old English dance, Capt. Jinks, while the sixth grade will interpret a continental drill and an English May Pole dance. The Rhythmic Dancing Club will appear again at the conclusion of the program in a colonial gayotte and a drill. Miss E. M. Geiger is general chairman in charge of the program.

Dr. T. Fred Kelly, chairman of the White House conference section on education and training, delivered a May Day radio address over station WRC yesterday afternoon. Secretary of the Interior Ray Lyman Wilbur will speak on the problems of child protection over a Nation-wide hookup at 1 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Free Examinations.

The welfare center of the Children's Hospital will be open for free examinations from 9 o'clock this morning until noon for children who are unable to have a private physician. Examinations will also be given at the following child hygiene centers:

Georgetown University Hospital, 330 C street northwest, 518 M street northwest, 480 E street southwest, 900 Maryland avenue northeast, 1205 Pennsylvania avenue southeast, 6327 Georgia avenue, 1201 Talbert street southeast and 2012 Rhode Island avenue northwest.

Parent-Teacher Associations have taken a prominent part in arranging the clinic programs. The associations will continue their health work throughout the summer through the summer round up campaign.

Buy-at-Home Moves Held Factor in Exports Decline

(Associated Press.)

Tariff increases, quotas, exchange restrictions and "buy-at-home" campaigns by foreign nations were blamed yesterday by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States for hampering United States exporters in 1931.

While citing these factors operating against the exporters "in their increased efforts to maintain existing foreign markets and develop new ones," the chamber in a statement attributed a larger part of the decline in value of American export trade to falling prices. Attention was called to domestic business at a low ebb in virtually every important country, causing reduced purchasing power, and to depreciated currencies toward the end of the year which "created further obstacles to our export trade to certain markets."

The chamber reported that despite a further decline for the year, 27 of the 181 leading commodities exported by the United States showed a gain in quantity over 1930 exports and the five-year average for 1926-30. Eleven were larger than the preceding year, but below the five-year average. The first class included crude petroleum, fresh apples and some other fruits, dried and canned, several secondary mineral and agricultural products, radio receiving sets and tubes, and miscellaneous articles.

The eleven commodities included unmanufactured cotton, oil cake and oil cake meal, raw hides and skins except furs and other raw and manufactured products.

The value of nine of the country's 100 chief exports were reported larger in 1931 than in 1930, four exceeding also those of the five-year period "of much higher prices."

HOOVER BACK HOME FROM TRIP TO CAMP

Wilbur and Other Members of Rapidan Party Study Shenandoah Conditions.

(Associated Press.)

President and Mrs. Hoover returned to the White House just before dusk yesterday after their first weekend of the year spent at the presidential camp in the mountains of Virginia.

The presidential party did not follow its usual route in returning to the White House from the mountain retreat. Because of the heavy rains which fell through the night, washing out part of the road between Criglersville and Sperryville, Va., not far from the camp, the President drove over a round-about route through Culpeper.

The Attorney General and Mrs. Mitchell rode with the Chief Executive and First Lady on the way home.

President Hoover appeared rested when he arrived at the Executive Mansion to find dinner waiting.

The early part of the day was spent with members of his party at the central cabin in the camp, known as "Town Hall," while a heavy spring rain fell. Later, after the rain subsided, he took a short, vigorous walk and then had luncheon.

Meanwhile, Secretary Wilbur and Horace M. Albright, director of the National Park Service, accompanied by several other members of the presidential party, made an inspection of the living conditions of persons residing in Corbin Hollow, which is to be included in the Shenandoah National Park.

There they found about 50 people living in what are called the "squalors" by other people dwelling in this section of the Blue Ridge Mountains.

The inspection was made with a view to determining some plan for removing the inhabitants to some better place when the Shenandoah National Park is opened, either late in the summer or early fall.

Early in the morning an airplane flew over the President's camp and dropped a bundle of Sunday morning papers for the Chief Executive and his guests.

SENATORS SEEKING NEW TAX CHANNELS

bills, but the main hope was placed on the omnibus economy bill.

Thus the necessity for perhaps even more taxes being added by the Senate. Senator Reed (Republican), Pennsylvania, is using this lever to press with renewed vigor the controversial sales tax. Both Republican and Democratic heads of the finance committee, however, consider this move out of the question in view of the decisive House vote against the tax.

Democratic leaders plan a desperate attempt to keep in the bill provisions recommended by the administration to save $38,714,000 through changes in veterans legislation. It is the third of the most controversial items in the bill and would affect 123,320 persons.

Chairman McDuffie, of the economy committee, said yesterday he hoped final action could be had on the measure tomorrow. Before it is put to a passage vote, however, the Alabama Democrat said he would demand a record vote on the emasculated 11 per cent wage cut plan, exempting $1,000, to restore $55,000,000 to the measure.

Representative Byrns (Democrat), Tennessee, also said he would insist on a record vote on the defeated Army and Navy consolidation proposal, which he estimated would save from $50,000,000 to $100,000,000. A separate vote on the elimination of the Saturday half-holiday to cut $9,000,000 off Government costs will be sought by Representative Douglas (Democrat), Arizona, also a member of the committee.

BRITONS SPLIT ATOM AND REACH NEW GOAL

likely to be powerful agents in extending our knowledge of the atom."

Lord Rutherford did not refer to the fears expressed in the past about dissolution of the world, presumably feeling that they were answered by the fact that the world is still intact.

Prof. Cockroft is the older of the two experimenters, but he is only 34. He disclosed a few of the details of his experiments to the Associated Press.

He said he and his colleague discovered that bombarded hydrogen atoms began to break up into helium, a still rarer gas, when the bombarding voltage was stepped up to 120,000.

He explained that these helium atoms came out of the bombardment with energies of 100 to 160 times the energies of particles fired into them.

However, he added, only one particle broke up for every 10,000,000 particles used to bombard it.

"We know, at any rate, we are on the right path," he concluded.

The atom is a part of the molecular theory of physics, which contends that all matter is composed of molecules, which are in turn composed of atoms and which eventually lead back to the simple idea that electric energy forms the basis of all matter.

This has been vastly revised in recent years until it has been made certain that atoms do exist and are composed of several particles.

Thus a molecule of water is composed of two atoms of hydrogen and one of oxygen (H_2O).

Lord Rutherford won his title in 1914 because of his remarkable progress in the field of physics, especially in experiments with the conduction of electricity through gases and radioactivity.

He is a native of New Zealand and is director of experimental physics at the Cavendish Laboratory, Cambridge, a post he has held since 1919.

French Deny Transfer Of De la Blanchetai

Reports of the transfer of Pierre Henry de la Blanchetai, first secretary of the French Embassy, to Mexico City, were authoritatively denied here last night. The popular diplomat will remain here under Ambassador Claudel. Before coming to Washington, Mr. de la Blanchetai was at the Quai D'Orsay.

In addition to his diplomatic career, Mr. de la Blanchetai has had considerable success as a historian, his life of "Henri V" having won an important literary prize in Paris last year.

Arithmetic Is Labeled 'Dead Wood' in School

(Associated Press.)

Eighty-five per cent of the arithmetical instruction to school pupils should be eliminated in the opinion of Dr. Robert K. Speer, of New York University. He regards most of it "dead wood."

In a speech over the National Broadcasting System last night Dr. Speer said:

"Who cares if children are not proficient in complex fractions, arithmetical ratios, foreign exchange, arithmetical and geometrical progression, involution, square and cube root?

"If we teach all the children," he added, "the arithmetic necessary in the following activities—buying at a store, making change, reading, writing letters and traveling—we will have covered a large percentage of their total use of arithmetic."

COLUMBIAN G. O. P. LEAGUE WILL MEET

Delegates From Six States to Attend Conference Here Wednesday.

The Columbian Republican League, an organization composed of Italian-American voters, will hold a conference here Wednesday to formulate plans for the coming campaign, it has been announced by the Republican national committee. About 75 delegates from Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania will attend. Among these are prominent bankers and business men, members of legislatures, lawyers, judges and editors of Italian newspapers.

The Columbian Republican League, originally organized in New York under leadership of Edward Corsi, Commissioner of Immigration, Ellis Island, is seven years old. The activities of the league were recently extended to these six States and will be further extended to include all States having a large Italian-American population. It will be the first time in the histotry of the Republican party that the Italian-Americans have organized on a national scale.

There will be an interstate executive meeting in the forenoon and at 12:30 the delegates will go in a body to the White House to pay their respects to President Hoover. A luncheon at the Willard Hotel will follow the White House reception, at which Robert H. Lucas, executive director of the Republican national committee, will be toastmaster. William N. Doak, Secretary of Labor; Commodore Ernest Lee Jahncke, Assistant Secretary of the Navy; Senator James J. Davis, of Pennsylvania; Senator W. Warren Barbour, of New Jersey, and Mr. Corsi will address the gathering.

MAY DAY OBSERVED QUIETLY OVER WORLD

Army and navy for the defense of the common fatherland."

A big demonstration against war was held in celebration of May Day in London without disorder, except a brief fight when some of the demonstrators tried to march on the Japanese Embassy in Portman Square.

Acting Premier Tunnecliffe was cut under the eye and three others roughly handled in Melbourne, Australia, when they were knocked off a truck by 5,000 demonstrators. They were preparing to speak when they were rushed by the crowd, which shouted, "Tunnecliffe is a traitor to the Labor party." Tunnecliffe was hit on the head with a loaded hose.

Rain fell incessantly throughout the morning and early afternoon in New York, providing an equality of wetness for all classes of citizens.

The demonstration began at noon, with 400 police, 40 of them mounted, guarding the streets leading to the square. It had its spiritual focus in the "Free Mooney" movement. Banners proclaimed his innocence, and gigantic plaster busts depicted his benignity of countenance.

May Day passed quietly in Washington. There were no demonstrations in front of the White House, as in some years. It had been reported that 800 Communists were marching toward the Capital, but police vigilance relaxed late in the afternoon when they had failed to make their appearance. Extra police details had been kept in readiness and yesterday's leaves were cancelled.

Million in Moscow See May Day Arms Display

Moscow, May 1 (U.P.).—A great display of military strength, and a call to all Soviet citizens to rally to the defense of the union against war and invasion, characterized the celebration of May Day in Moscow.

While 1,000,000 persons gathered in and about Red Square and the tomb of Lenin, the demonstration reached its height with the thundering passage overhead of 275 war airplanes. Previously there was a three-hour parade of 35,000 regular troops, with cavalry, motorized war machines and armed civilians, who passed in review before the tomb.

Joseph Stalin, the Soviet ruler; Klementi Voroshilov, minister of war, and other leaders reviewed the parade.

Ismet Pasha, the Turkish premier, and German and other diplomats viewed the military parade. It revealed the progress of the mechanization and motorization of the Red army. Ten new four-motored bombers led the phalanx of war planes, while hundreds of new tanks and artillery equipment roared through the square. An unusually large number of armed factory workers were noticed.

A contrast to the military display was the celebration of the Greek Orthodox Easter by the hundreds of thousands who still cling to the old religion.

WOLL URGES ACTION TO CURB RED PERIL

Seeks Legislation Covering Communist Program of Destruction.

(Associated Press.)

Support of legislation empowering the Justice Department to investigate and deal with alleged communistic subversive movements was urged upon Chairman Summers, of the House judiciary committee, yesterday by Matthew Woll, vice president of the American Federation of Labor.

Accompanying Woll's letter to the Texas Democrat, was a report by Ralph M. Easley, chairman of the executive council of the National Civic Federation, on a survey made of what Woll termed "outrages perpetrated during the last four months in our country." These included "forest and oil well fires, bombings, destruction and burning of buildings, looting of banks, &c.," causing losses listed as aggregating hundreds of millions of dollars.

"A study of the communistic literature published in English and foreign languages here and abroad leads to the conviction that a definite plan of destructive action is being conducted in this and all other civilized countries," Woll wrote.

He recalled a statement made in the House by Representative Snell, of New York, the Republican leader, that the Justice Department had no power to investigate Communistic activities in this country and that "there is no one connected with the Government at the present time who knows the exact situation that exists in regard to what Communists may or may not be doing here in the United States."

"Unless prompt and vigorous action is taken to give our Government this needed power," Woll added, "the United States will continue impotent to defend itself against any or all forces seeking its destruction. The Communists themselves say openly to their people: 'Go the limit! The Federal Government can't do anything and the State governments don't know anything!'

"I urge you to support legislation to remedy this dangerous situation."

The committee has before it legislation proposed by Representative Fish (Republican), New York, former chairman of the House Communist investigating committee, to give the Justice Department authority to investigate and prosecute subversive activities of all influences directed against the American Government.

amendment resolution and the still pending controversial revenue and economy bills. The prospective record vote this week on governmental salary cuts will take its place as a major issue in some districts.

Several House members are seeking seats in the Senate. They include Representative Charles A. Crisp, of Georgia; Phil Swing and Joe Crail, of California, with a possibility of Ralph Horr, a wet of Washington, entering the race against Senator Jones, author of the Jones five-and-ten law.

In addition, a number of members plan to retire voluntarily, including Aldrich, of Rhode Island; Mrs. Effiegene Wingo, of Arkansas; Charles Brand, of Ohio, and Morton D. Hull, of Illinois.

Meanwhile, members of the delegations from Indiana and South Dakota are anxiously awaiting the outcome of the primaries tomorrow, while those from Maryland are at home to vote today. Senator Tydings, Democrat, is up for renomination in Maryland.

A Democratic senatorial nominee and nine members of the House are to be nominated in Alabama tomorrow. Alabama lost one seat under the reapportionment, throwing Representatives Patterson and Allgood into one district.

Among present members who already have lost out in the primaries are: Chindblom, W. E. Hull and Johnson, Republicans, and Igoe and Kunz, Democrats, Illinois; Norton (Democrat), Nebraska; Golder, Magrady, Chase and Sullivan, Republicans, Pennsylvania.

THREE DEMOCRATS CLAIM COAST VOTES

Roosevelt, Smith and Garner Backers Agree Primary Tuesday Important.

San Francisco, May 1 (A.P.).—California's embattled Democrats, flushed with a record registration strength, heard leaders of three factions claim victory today for the presidential primary Tuesday.

Tickets of delegates pledged to deliver the State's 44 national convention votes offered a choice of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York; Alfred E. Smith, the party's selection in 1928, and John N. Garner, of Texas, Speaker of the National House of Representatives.

Leaders of all three factions admitted the outcome may prove of great importance in determining the national trends.

"The election in California Tuesday has great national significance," declared Henry H. McPike, director of the northern California Garner-for-President organization.

Roosevelt's Son Present.

That the Smith and Roosevelt supporters agreed was indicated by the vigor with which the causes of their favorites were pressed.

Roosevelt's son, James D. Roosevelt, joined in the drive for votes. At a rally luncheon here yesterday, he predicted his father would be given the State's votes and would be nominated on the first ballot at the Chicago national convention.

He rushed to Los Angeles by airplane and last night shared the speaker's platform with Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana.

Smith and Garner supporters resorted to radio appeals and published statements. Smith's antiprohibition stand was stressed in view of the recent appeal of the California Vineyardists Association for legislation for "naturally fermented beverages."

Garner Backers' Charges.

Garner spokesmen charged both Roosevelt and Smith represented the "machine" interests. They argued their "Lone Star" State candidate would unite the democracy of the country.

Party leaders are noticeably split. Isidore B. Dockweiler, of Los Angeles, national committeeman, is aligned with the Roosevelt group. Mrs. Charles L. Donohue, of Oakland, national committee woman, is a member of the Garner primary delegation. William G. McAdoo, former Secretary of the Treasury, heads the Garner ticket.

Solidly behind President Hoover, Republican party leaders sought a large "confidence vote." They also endeavored to obtain a turnout to indicate California was still safely Republican, as would appear from a 500,000 registration margin still held, despite the unprecedented Democratic registration of 874,482.

Taylor Returns to Capital After Pennsylvania Victory

District Lawyer to Oppose Haines for House Seat in General Election.

Leighton C. Taylor, Washington lawyer, returned here last night from Pennsylvania, where he won a sweeping victory in the Republican primaries there Tuesday.

Mr. Taylor won the nomination for the House of Representatives over former Representative Franklin Menges. He will be opposed in the general election by Representative Harry Haines, Democrat, of York, Pa.

Mr. Taylor polled 11,401 votes in the Twenty-second District, which is composed of York, Adams and Franklin Counties. His opponent polled 7,356. The district was formerly composed of York and Adams Counties, but recent reapportionment added Franklin County to the district.

For 18 years Mr. Taylor was secretary to the late Senator Boies Penrose and later served as secretary to former Senator Joseph Grundy. He has been practicing law here for seven years. His Pennsylvania residence is in Bendersville, Adams County, Pa. His local address is 210 Massachusetts avenue northeast.

SOUTH DAKOTA VOTE SOUGHT BY FACTIONS

Presidential Politics Pushed Aside, but Roosevelt Sure of Ten.

Sioux Falls, S. Dak., May 1 (A.P.). Factional fights rather than presidential politics occupy South Dakota's attention preparatory to Tuesday's primary election.

Contests for presidential preference votes concerned only the Republicans, but both parties have internal battles for nominations, with some acrimony involved in the contests for senator and governor.

Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York is assured of South Dakota's ten votes to the Democratic national convention, but on the Republican ticket there is a contest between two uninstructed slates of delegates.

One Republican ticket was regarded as favorable to President Hoover. The other, also uninstructed, was committed to vote for "some Progressive."

Senator Peter Norbeck, Republican Independent chairman of the Senate banking committee, did not return from Washington to campaign personally for renomination. He is opposed by Harry F. Brownell, Sioux Falls oil man, and Charles Hartsough, of Hooker. Brownell is regarded as Norbeck's chief opposition.

Gov. Warren Green, compromise candidate of the Republicans in 1930, is opposed for renomination by Carl Gunderson, of Mitchell, former governor, and Tom Ayres, of Aberdeen, who in the past has campaigned unsuccessfully on the Farmer-Labor ticket.

The Democrats also face internal strife over the major nominations. Both Republican Congressmen, C. A. Christopherson and William Williamson, have opposition.

The "Liberty Party," a new faction, has entered candidates for some of the major offices, but its registration has been light.

"BONE-DRY" INDIANA VOTE CALLED INDEX

Results of Ballot Tomorrow Expected to Show Trend on Prohibition.

Indianapolis, May 1 (U.P.).—Results of Tuesday's primary election in bone-dry Indiana may show the Nation which way the straws in the prohibition winds are blowing.

On the outcome of the balloting may depend whether the State's party conventions will insert liberal planks in State platforms and whether delegates to the national conventions will favor or frown upon the suggestion that prohibition be stressed as a national issue.

On the outcome of the voting depend also four other important matters in State politics—the make-up of the new congressional delegation, membership in the 1933 Legislature, organization of Indiana factions in both Republican and Democratic parties and nomination of candidates for United States senator, governor and other State offices.

The two major parties in State conventions to be held later will choose delegates to the national conventions and nominees for State offices. The delegates to the State conventions are to be elected by precinct committeemen named in the primary.

Wet and dry campaigns have been waged by candidates in nearly every section of the State. Only 37 of the 93 candidates seeking congressional nominations were supported by the Antisaloon League. For the first time since enactment of the eighteenth amendment, the Antisaloon League was without a candidate in the Eighth District. The league refused to indorse John W. Boehne, jr., Democrat, Evansville; John Survant, Republican, Velpen, and French Clements, Republican, Evansville.

Zest is added to the campaigns by factional division of the Indiana Democrats. R. Earl Peters, Fort Wayne, State chairman, heads one wing, and Frank Mayr, jr., South Bend, secretary of state, heads the other. Mayr is seeking to wrest control of the party from Peters.

Rhode Island Has Convention Today

Democrats Are Expected to Pick Delegates Nominally Favoring Smith.

Providence, R. I., May 1 (A.P.).—Rhode Island Democrats will gather here tomorrow in State convention to elect delegates to the national convention and to elect the two Rhode Island members of the Democratic national committee.

Col. Patrick P. Quinn, national committeeman, has announced he will not run for reelection. This makes practically certain the election of Peter G. Gerry, former United States senator, or a candidate of his choice.

Mrs. Jane A. Newton, national committeewoman, has declared herself a candidate. State Senator Isabelle A. O'Neill is expected to oppose Mrs. Newton, although the former has not announced her candidacy. A contest between these two may develop at the convention.

Mr. Gerry and J. Howard McGrath, chairman of the Democratic State committee, are on record as supporting presidential candidacy of Alfred E. Smith and it is expected the delegates elected tomorrow will be nominally "Smith votes."

TWO GOVERNORS END FLIGHT FOR RECORD

Rolph and Balzar Like Two Boys After Unusual Hop Across Continent.

Los Angeles, May 1 (A.P.).—The West's flying governors, James Rolph, jr., of California and Fred Balzar of Nevada were like two boys after a particularly exciting lark as they took off for Sacramento today after a transcontinental hop.

They didn't break a time record when they flew from the National Capital to Los Angeles in 23 hours of elapsed time yesterday, and today they joined their pilot, Roscoe Turner, in denying that they even tried.

But they did something no single governor or brace of governors has ever done before, and theirs was an air of grinning pride.

There was drama sufficient to delight any boyish spirit at the United Airport at Burbank around midnight last night. A large throng frowned uneasily into a silent sky as the scheduled time for the arrival of the governors' plane arrived and passed.

Searchlights sent pillars of brilliance into the dark. Radio men and photographers fidgeted with their instruments.

At 12:15 the East throbbed with an airplane's motors. A moment later the riding lights gleamed far above. At 12:20 the ship taxied up the runway, and the governors were shaking hands with Pilot Turner as the latter started for a microphone to announce they had made the final leg from Winslow, Ariz., in less than three hours, and that for the first time in history governors were able to eat breakfast in Washington and dinner on the West Coast.

A late dinner, Turner admitted, but still the first dinner after the breakfast. Any thought of trying for a record, he said, was sacrificed to the necessity of safety in view of the importance of his passengers.

The trip was attended by excitement all along the way, but the governors said today that even the weariness of midnight had vanished after eight hours of sleep.

Bad weather forced them down three hours at Cincinnati. Outside Springfield, Mo., a bird flew through the fabric of the left wing. After Amarillo, Tex., strong headwinds were encountered, and when the ship refueled at Winslow the fliers knew that they must buck more opposing breeze into Los Angeles.

HOOVER AND FRANCE CLASH IN FREE STATE

vention primary today in Maryland. He and Joseph I. France, former Maryland senator, who disputes Mr. Hoover's right to a batch of delegates in Illinois, North Dakota, Nebraska and Pennsylvania, will fight it out for Maryland's preference vote.

The Maryland primary will select delegates only to State conventions to be held later. The State meetings will name 19 Republican and 16 Democratic national delegates. Gov. Albert C. Ritchie has been promised the Democratic delegates.

With the President unopposed for his State's 47 delegates in tomorrow's voting, the three-way Democratic contest on the Pacific Coast will be watched with three possibilities in view:

A Roosevelt victory will be hailed as starting up again his parade toward the nomination, which Smith halted by capturing Massachusetts, delegation of 36 and an undetermined number in Pennsylvania.

Should Smith win, the "chock" he said he placed under the Roosevelt "bandwagon" last week will practically double in size.

A Garner victory will immediately take him out of the favorite son class and make him a contender for the nomination on about a par with Smith as far as delegates are concerned.

With Smith's forces well on the way to corral Connecticut's 16 delegates May 16, based on his large majorities in town and district caucuses, the 1928 standard bearer stands a good chance of winning ten more delegates today in the Rhode Island convention.

Offsetting this, however, will be Roosevelt's capture of ten tomorrow in South Dakota, where he is unopposed in the primary.

The New York Governor also stands to win at least 20 in the Democratic primary tomorrow in Alabama, and possibly all 24. An anti-Smith, uninstructed slate of eight delegates at large, with half a vote each, will contest with a Roosevelt pledged slate there.

Chicago Labor Applauds Long's Resigning Posts

Chicago, May 1 (A.P.).—The Chicago Federation of Labor today expressed approval of the action of Senator Huey P. Long, of Louisiana, in resigning last week from all Senate committees of which he was a member.

A resolution adopted by the federation also expressed resentment because "Senator Long's amendment proposing limitation of predatory wealth in the tax bill before Congress was ridiculed and denounced by other congressmen."

Third of State Conventions Seek Dry Repeal or Vote

(Associated Press.)

Nearly one-third, or 12, of the 37 Republican and Democratic State conventions which have named presidential nominating delegates have come out for repeal or resubmission of the prohibition amendment in various ways.

Two-thirds of the twelve conventions favoring a change or an opportunity to vote on the question are Democratic, with only 14 conventions held to date. The other four are Republican, with 23 conventions held so far.

Four Democratic meetings ignored the question, while two voted dry. Thirteen Republican conventions made no mention of prohibition in their platforms. Six were dry.

The eight Democratic conventions taking antiprohibition or referendum stands are New York, Iowa, Maine, Minnesota, Washington, Michigan, Illinois and North Dakota.

Republican — Missouri, Michigan and Minnesota, with Connecticut expecting to favor repeal, although no instructions were given. Wisconsin Progressives, in a separate convention, voted wet.

Democratic conventions taking no action—Oklahoma, Louisiana, Arkansas and Kentucky.

Republican—Florida, Georgia, Iowa, Kansas, Louisiana, New York, Virginia, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Kentucky, Nevada, Arizona and Mississippi (black and tan convention).

Democratic dry conventions (either favoring enforcement or voting down wet proposals)—Georgia, Missouri.

Republican dry—Maine, North Carolina, Colorado, Delaware, Arkansas, South Carolina.

To Take Stand at Retrial of Four Hawaiians; Date to Be Set Today.

spent part of the time in jail for safekeeping and, since Friday's verdict, have remained out of sight in their homes under police protection.

A conference will be held tomorrow between representatives of the Attorney General's office and the public prosecutor to fix a date for the beginning of the new trial. Deputy Attorney General Harold Kay said it might start within a fortnight.

The conference also was expected to determine whether Kelley, who obtained Friday's convictions by his vigorous prosecution, would conduct the territory's case in the assault retrial. Kelley declined today to say whether he would handle the retrial.

Navy officials held that Kelly's conduct in the murder case, should remove him from the prosecution of the four Hawaiians.

Kay said new evidence has been found since the jury failed to agree. He said the territory has an "infinitely stronger" case than during the former trial.

Sentiment concerning the assault trial, as well as the murder hearing is widely varied. It ranges from the feeling of those who, with an eye on official Washington, urge a conviction to offset mainland criticism of the Fortesque verdict, to those who express the belief a conviction would reflect on the justice of a verdict of guilty in the murder trial.

Meanwhile, the defendants, though shocked, are bearing up under it wonderfully well, Bell said. "We all were tremendously surprised. We didn't see how there could be a conviction."

Bell and his sister, Mrs. Helen Ripley, represented the defendants at a conference of attorneys after the verdict Friday. A long meeting was held at Pearl Harbor, attended by Clarence Darrow, chief of defense counsel, and Charles S. Leisure, his associate, principally, it was said to reassure the defendants.

Montgomery Winn, assistant defense counsel, said today there was little to do now except wait until sentence is pronounced Friday, after which a motion for a new trial will be filed. Winn said the motion for a new trial will not be argued Friday, but at a later date to be fixed by Judge Charles S. Davis, who heard the case.

Darrow, who appeared almost numbed by the shock of the verdict, seemed in better spirits today and planned a motor car ride with friends.

Honolulu spent a quiet Saturday night, and the lack of activity was accentuated by a heavy rain which fell nearly all night. Patrol cars maintained steady beats without incident. Several undercover reprisals were under way today as a result of the murder trial. Among them was a boycott by a group of women of businesses employing men who served on the jury. It was learned, too, that many service people said they would buy hereafter exclusively from the Army and Navy commissaries.

Commissary sales have risen quickly since the trial.

The trial of Joseph Young, 22-year-old Korean, charged with assaulting a 17-year-old Chinese girl early in March, will begin here tomorrow in Judge Albert M. Christy's court.

During and since the Kahahawai murder trial Kelley said he had received a number of threats, none of which he regarded seriously. Police, however, were maintaining a night guard at his home.

unsuccessfully to form a cabinet as premier in 1929.

Henry Franklin-Bouillon, former chairman of the chamber's foreign affairs committee, who consistently opposed the policies of the late Aristide Briand.

Count Charles de Lasteyrie, former finance minister and descendant of a minister of Louis XVI who lent some money to Benjamin Franklin.

Camille Chautemps, who was premier four days—from February 21 to 25, 1930.

Former Premier Joseph Caillaux, however, failed to capture the seat from Nantes, long held by the late Aristide Briand. He left the Senate to enter the contest and is now without a place in the political arena.

The vote yesterday was unusually heavy. Newspapers forecast a total vote of 9,000,000 ballots, or about 82 per cent of the qualified electorate, as compared with the 70 per cent to 75 per cent vote ordinarily cast in past elections.

Despite the fact that it was May Day, traditional holiday of the workers in Europe, when radical groups seek to make a display of labor's solidarity with occasional disorders, there were only minor disturbances in isolated spots.

2 Hurt and 33 Arrested.

Two men were seriously injured and 33 arrested. One was hurt in a fight between Communists and young patriots at the Town Hall of Ivry, Communist suburb of Paris. Thirteen were arrested there, including a municipal councilor. A political henchman was shot in the stomach while posting bills at Courbevoie.

Foreign relations played a part in the campaign, but there was no great divergence between the mapority and opposition positions.

The government has stood upon its record in reparations and disarmament. The opposition Radical Socialist party, more liberal than radical or socialist in the American meaning, criticized the government's activities in these fields. It took no strongly outlined position against the intangibility of the reparations payments from Germany and the "security" policy of France in disarmament.

The Socialists, also in the opposition, have been much more critical of the government on foreign policy, particularly championing disarmament and counseling closer relations with Germany.

The election campaign centered largely on domestic matters, such as unemployment relief, public finances, electoral reform and even votes for women. Premier Tardieu has predicted that women suffrage will come into existence during the coming legislative term. The chamber voted for it in the past session, but the Senate, as in the past, spiked the project.

The parties are divided as to their political tendencies as follows:

Right — Republican Democratic Union, Independents, Popular Democrats.

Actual votes in the chamber have varied greatly, depending on the different issues involved, as group discipline in France is not very tight, but on an average the government has been able to count upon a fairly safe majority of 40.

$200,000 Blasts Injure 2 in Ohio

Bombs Hinted as Cause of Mystery Explosions; Fire Follows.

Youngstown, Ohio, May 1 (A.P.).—Two firemen were injured and damage estimated to exceed $200,000 was caused by a fire that followed two mysterious explosions in the business section of Struthers, a suburb, early today.

The first blast had its origin in a wholesale and retail grocery house, owned by D. Toriello & Sons. Fire, following immediately in the wake of the explosion, forced Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Reynolds to flee from their adjoining apartment in their night clothing. Fireman Karl Kurtz was seriously injured when a second blast hurled burning timbers from the structure. Fireman Claire Penfield was overcome by smoke.

An investigation was launched on suspicion that the blasts were the result of bombs. Almost half the Struthers business section was destroyed.

Bishop McDowell Opens Conference

Calls for Renaissance of Methodist Ideals and Doctrines.

Atlantic City, N. J., May 1 (A.P.).—Bishop William F. McDowell, of Washington, D. C., preaching the opening sermon of the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, today called for a renaissance of Methodist ideals and doctrines.

Retiring as senior bishop of the church after 50 years of service—28 years as a bishop—the speaker delivered his message to 850 clerical and lay delegates from many parts of the world, assembled for the beginning of the conference tomorrow.

"The church once held a supreme position in the world," he said, "but the church today is not occupying its supreme position in the modern world as it ought. We were once a church of redemption. Let us go back to that position and emphasize that doctrine."

Secretary Hurley Returns to Washington After Cleveland and New York Visit; Ambassador Grew to Be Feted

THE SECRETARY OF WAR, Mr. Patrick J. Hurley, has returned to Washington after a visit of some days spent in Cleveland and New York.

Senator and Mrs. Hiram Bingham will entertain at dinner Wednesday, May 11, in honor of the newly appointed Ambassador to Japan and Mrs. Joseph C. Grew, who will leave shortly for Mr. Grew's new post.

Mrs. Bingham made a trip by airplane a week ago to Boston to visit her son, who is in school nearby.

Representative Patrick J. Carley, of New York, will be joined in his apartment at Wardman Park Hotel by Mrs. Carley, who will arrive in Washington on Wednesday accompanied by their young daughter, to remain for some time.

Mrs. John Boylan, of New York, wife of Representative Boylan, is temporarily residing at the Willard. Mrs. Boylan came to Washington to be near Representative Boylan, who is recovering from a serious illness.

Miss Lucy Billings Cathcart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Richard Cathcart, of Leonia, N. J., formerly of Columbia and Charleston, S. C., was married Saturday to Mr. Jonathan Worth Daniels, of 415 Central Park West, New York, son of former Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels and Mrs. Daniels, of Raleigh, N. C. The wedding took place in the chantry of St. Thomas Church, the rector, the Rev. Dr. Roelif H. Brooks, officiating. A reception for the families was held at the residence of the bride's mother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Noble Aydelotte Cathcart, 345 East Fifty-seventh street.

Mr. Cathcart gave his daughter in marriage. She wore a jacket frock of beige pink crepe Elizabeth with an overblouse of lace in the same shade and a corsage of pink orchids at the waistline. Her small beige pink straw hat was adorned at the side by a pale pink chrysanthemum plume. She carried a prayerbook which had been used by her grandmother at her wedding.

The bride's only attendant was a flower girl, Elizabeth Bridgers Daniels, daughter of the bridegroom. She wore a Kate Greenaway frock of pale blue organdie with a bonnet to match. She carried an old-fashioned nosegay of pink roses and forget-me-nots.

Mr. Noble A. Cathcart was best man. Ushers were Messrs. Josephus Daniels, jr., Frank A. Daniels and Dr. Worth Bagley Daniels, brothers of the bridegroom, and Mr. Richard Trowbridge Cathcart, another brother of the bride.

Following a trip Mr. and Mrs. Daniels will reside in Raleigh, N. C., after June 1.

The bride was graduated from the Dwight School at Englewood, N. J., and attended Smith College.

Mr. Daniels has been one of the editors of the magazine Fortune and served his journalistic apprenticeship in Washington and North Carolina. He is the author of a novel and of several short stories and in 1930 and 1931 he studied abroad on a Guggenheim fellowship. He attended the University of North Carolina and the Columbia University Law School.

His father is editor and publisher of the Raleigh News and Observer. His first wife, who was Miss Elizabeth Bridgers, of Raleigh, died in 1929.

Mrs. Walter Tuckerman, who has been in New York for a few days, returned to Washington Saturday evening.

Miss Ruth Tuckerman, who was recently hurt while riding horseback, is still in the hospital, but greatly improved, and is expected to return to her home in Edgemoor within the next few days.

Capital Republican Club Holds Open House Tea.

Another of the teas which have been so successful in attracting interesting guests to the Sunday afternoon open house parties given by the National Capital Republican Club was held in the parlors of the club yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Arthur R. Robinson, wife of the junior senator from Indiana, and Mrs. Robert Drakely Rood, national committeewoman from Oklahoma, now a guest in Washington, presided at the tea tables and had as their assistants Mrs. Douglas Hatch, Mrs. Frederick Ballard, Miss Marjorie Daniells, Miss Helen Love, Miss Florence Hooper, Miss Neva Butler, Miss Ethel Wheaton, Miss Myrtle Patterson, Miss Gertrude Louis and Miss Gertrude Rawlins.

No invitations are sent out for these informal teas, as it is the hope of the directing heads of the various Republican groups that all Republicans in Washington come in for a cup of tea anad a chat with other guests.

The clubhouse, located at Sixteenth street and Scott Circle, is the former Japanese Embassy, and has undergone many changes which have transformed it into a most spacious and delightful setting for the many social affairs constantly in progress there.

The open house tea yesterday was in the nature of all-States affair, but shortly it is planned to have State days, at which time residents of the States will be featured guests and those high in governmental position from the specially designated State in whose honor and name the tea is given will be guests of honor.

Officers and directors of the club assisted in receiving the guests from 4 to 6:30 o'clock.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

HERE'S a precious letter from a reader, which I value so much that I am passing it on to all of you for what it may be worth, and here's hoping it will be worth a great deal in terms of beauty.

Elsie Pierce.

"Dear Miss Pierce: Thank you for your Beauty Schedule. And I want to tell you what I did with it. I pasted it on a large, white cardboard and left a large space on the right side of it. Then I boxed off, at the top, all the days of the week. Under each day I mark either a check or the time that each operation has been performed; hair brushed, face patted, &c. This simple trick (tomfoolery, you may call it) has helped me more than you will ever know to be really beauty conscious, and already friends are remarking that they have noticed a wonderful improvement in me. I have you to thank. I keep this schedule behind my bathroom door and it serves as a daily reminder.

In fact, I have become so interested that the last time the weather was really inclement, raw and rainy, an engagement was called off. Ordinarily, I would have been at a loss what to do, but not on that day. No sir! Right through the whole beauty routine I went as intensely as you please. Didn't I feel better? Who said it was raining? There was a new sun in my sky and new beauty in my face, hands and hair."

* * * *

There are any number of ingenious tricks which you can devise that will make you more conscious of yourself and your loveliness, that will draw you to the little beauty tasks which you should perform in your own interests, daily, regularly, persistently. You know yourself better than anybody else does (or, at least, you should) and you know just what measures are necessary to make you want to be beautiful and want to do things for yourself that will enhance your personal loveliness.

As with everything else, the only way to achieve physical perfection is to "up and at it"—get started. Fifty per cent of all accomplishment can be credited to just beginning. And the will to be lovely, beatifully groomed, healthy, radiant, poised, charming (or substitute your own adjectives that indicate perfection) is the only thing to get you started.

But, I have deviated quite a bit from today's beauty lesson, which was suggested by a reader to whom I am grateful. When the weather is so bad that you are tempted to cancel all engagements, when you would rather go to a movie or stay indoors and read, or just while away the time, turn a rainy day into a day of beauty. You won't begrudge the time if it is well spent on yourself. I am grateful to the writer of the above letter and hope that all readers will feel free to write when they have such valuable suggestions to offer.

And for those interested readers who would like to follow out the suggestions of the charming subject of our story, my Beauty Schedule will be sent on receipt of a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Elsie Pierce

Elsie Pierce, famous beauty lecturer, will answer any questions on beauty you wish to ask her. Address Miss Pierce, in care of The Washington Post, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

ROADSIDE radio broadcasting serving as a safeguard to motorists, and offering possibilities as a substitute for traffic signs and advertising billboards, is one possible development of radio, according to Orestes H. Caldwell, formerly a member of the Federal Radio Commission. He ventured the suggestion that short-wave antennas placed at strategic intervals along busy highways could be utilized for traffic warnings, highway directions and even advertising.

"If automobile radio sets were tuned to a fixed short-wave, local antennas, installed along a roadway route, could be used to deliver appropriate messages to motor car drivers," said Mr. Caldwell.

"Upon approaching a dangerous curve, for example, the car would pass through a zone of radio vibrations carrying the warning 'slow down—bad curve ahead.' Later, the motor car driver entering the limits of a town would hear the radio voice repeat 'Speed limit 20 miles an hour—drive slowly and see our town; drive fast and see our jail.'

"Motorists by this radio system could be informed of the locations of gasoline stations and advertisers could utilize the roadway broadcasting system to inform automobile parties of good places to stop for chicken dinner."

Transmitters not much larger than an ordinary radio set would serve to energize the roadside antennas, whose range of action would be limited to 1,000 feet, Mr. Caldwell said.

THE Massed Band festival at Celina, Ohio, on May 6, will be directed by Lieut. Charles Benter, leader of the United States Navy Band. School bands in that part of the country will participate.

The first in a new series, with George Olsen and his music, Ethel Shutta, vocalist, and Jack Benny, stage and screen comedian, will be heard over the WJZ network at 8:30 o'clock tonight.

THE "free speech" question, as provided for both in the Constitution of the United States and the radio act of 1927, will be up for judicial determination by the District Court of Appeals for the first time when the now famous Shuler case is argued tomorrow. The case may finally go to the United States Supreme Court.

The Radio Commission sometime ago unanimously cancelled the license of the Rev. Shuler, pastor of Trinity Methodist Church, of Los Angeles, and put his station, KGEF, off the air.

Shuler will be represented in the Court of Appeals by Louis G. Caldwell, and the citizens opposed to Shuler's station by Thomas P. Littlepage.

Two prominent newspapermen—Arthur Krock, Washington correspondent of the New York Times, and Julian Mason, editor of the New York Evening Post—will be interrogated by Ruth Morgan, vice president of the National League of Women Voters during the broadcast of the program, "You and Your Government" tomorrow (WJZ network, 7 p. m.).

THE formal opening of the great choir and sanctuary of the Washington Cathedral for public worship will be broadcast Thursday morning, May 5, from 10 a. m. to 11 a. m., over a nation-wide network of the Columbia Broadcasting System. The broadcast will include a sermon by the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, with hymns by the National Cathedral Choir, directed by Edgar Priest, organist and choir master. President and Mrs. Hoover will attend the service.

Three programs, originating regularly in the studios of Station WNAC, Boston, will reach Washingtonians via Station WMAL, beginning at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon with the presentation of the "Boston Symphonette," an ensemble directed by Charles R. Hector. The second period, "The Boston Popular Revue," will be heard on Thursdays, 2:30 p. m., and the third, "The Boston Variety Hour," a full hour presentation, on Saturdays, at 2 p. m.

SENATOR David I. Walsh, of Massachusetts, a member of the Senate finance committee, will discuss "Our Tax Dilemma" from the studios of Station WRC, at 9 o'clock tonight in the National Radio Forum.

Political speakers listed for the Lucky Strike Dance Hour this week are Representative Arthur M. Free, Republican, of California (Tuesday night, 9 o'clock, WRC) and Representative John McDuffie, Democratic whip of the House (Thursday, 9 p. m., WRC).

Much air talk this week will center around Churchill Downs and Derby Day. Tonight's "Parade of the States," WRC, 8:30 o'clock, will be dedicated to Kentucky and a musical description of what transpires "At the Race Track" has been prepared by Erno Rapee.

For the third consecutive year Irvin S. Cobb and Grantland Rice will discuss the Derby (Wednesday, WRC, 9 p. m.).

JACK DENNY will make his first speaking appearance before the microphone when he is interviewed by Bob Taplinger on the "Meet the Artist" period tomorrow. • • • "Beau Balladeer" is radio's newest mystery barytone (WJZ, 9:15 tonight). • • • It is reported that certain eagle-eyed producers on the West Coast have cast their glances in the direction of young Lanny Ross, hoping he may be prevailed upon to sign a movie contract. • • • Helen Morgan will do several selections in the program scheduled for WRC at 8 o'clock on Wednesday. • • • A Lewis Carroll centenary program, during which 80-year-old Mrs. Alice Liddell Hargreaves, the original Alice in Wonderland, is to speak, will be broadcast over the WJZ hook-up on Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

A very interesting spring traveling coat of large meshed beige tweed, with brown cloth belt and brown kid buttons. (Courtesy of the Maison Heim, Paris.)

NEW YORK, May 1.—Shorter skirts were due, not to say necessary! Shorter skirts, the January collections of the Haute Couture to the contrary, just had to come in for spring and summer wear—the April collections show real summer wear, you know.

Because while the tan and 11-inch length from the floor is quite all right for afternoon wear of the town type—it just isn't any too chic for daytime summer wear. One can indulge in organdies and chiffons that touch the ankles to the heart's content—but in the matter of length for the day time or sports summer dress, 13 inches from the floor is certainly the wise and chic length.

Go about midcalf is the very best length for summer hems. Never short enough to show the incurve of the knee, never. But midcalf, yes. As Mme. Yteb says, anything that approaches the "taggy" or "draggy" effect is positively ageing, and no woman looks well in long skirts except in the romantic evenings.

The Maison Worth says that afternoon and evening dresses can, of course, go to literally any lengths—but that the summer models, particularly those made in light weight wools, must be shorter, ending at mid-calf. This house adds, however, that skirt lengths must be modified according to individual lines and figure characteristics, and that even the wearer's walk will dictate minor changes in any established length.

Schiaparelli states positively that spring and summer skirts for daytime wear will be shorter. Her new summer tweeds are quite a sensation, and all mid-calf length.

And that is the latest on the long and the short of it, my deahs!

• • • •

Wouldn't you like to go gangplanking in this? The coat I had to sketch for you today, from the Maison Heim, of Paris? I had to sketch it because it was so simply delightful! And gangplanking reminds me somehow that I have been at Dawn Mirage quite a long while, for me • • • guess I'll get gangplank feet now and see what happens.

'N' the first thing I will send for is this traveling coat of beige—tweed, the nice little thing. The wide belt, the brown buttons, the silhouette, all appeal to me. What about you?

How to make a Play Suit, a Sun Suit for little tot, and Play Pyjamas for young sister, are in this week's leaflet. I just had so very many requests for something really practical for the kiddies for summer—something mother could easily make at home, and more easily wash and iron, that I designed these three as the most makeable and practical children's spring and summer play togs I could think of. Better send a stamped self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for the illustrated leaflet, and see if you don't agree with me.

• • • •

A slight, oh ever so slight tendency to get away from the slick, sleek, tightly fitting hipline of the present mode is whispered about. Some couturieres have offered frocks that are gathered the least bit at the waist. Of course, with all other models showing the closely fitted line, this silhouette looks a bit odd to the accustomed eye—but then, to funnier things than that have we become gradually accustomed!

• • • •

Lyolene has a most successful little blouse in her collection this spring—I thought you might like me to sketch it, so I did. 'Nif you ever guessed who made the oval around the blouse sketch! Well, anyhow besides, the blouse is silk crepe and trimmed with glass buttons, and too darling for words, words, Hemlette!

Au Revoir.

THE HANDS BID AROUND THE WORLD.

THE world's most gigantic Bridge game has recently been completed, more than 30,000 players in 33 countries participating in the World Bridge Olympic, held under the direction of the National Bridge Association, a corporation not for profit, organized for the promotion of Bridge. Sixteen hands, prepared in advance by Mrs. Culbertson, Theodore A. Lightner and myself, Messrs. Waldemar von Zedtwitz, were played simultaneously throughout the world.

In view of the widespread interest in these hands, I have decided to analyze the questions of bidding and play which arose in their play in this series of articles.

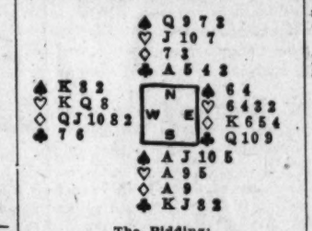
Hand No. 1 presented in the bidding a choice as to the correct final declaration, the choice being between playing the hand at a game declaration in spades or at a game declaration in notrump. A study of the cards, of course, reveals that game can not be made against the best defense at notrump, and it requires delicate handling and the utilization of the entire trick-taking power of the North and South hands to fulfill the contract of four spades.

The principles of play exemplified are: First, the cutting of the line of communication between West, who has the Opening lead, and his partner in the East; second, the automatic elimination of one suit—diamonds—from both the Dummy and closed hands; third, the lead of an unnecessarily high card in a side suit, in order, later, to create an additional entry in the Dummy hand; fourth, the elimination of clubs from the West hand, and fifth, the creation of an end-play situation, in order to fulfill the contract.

Par on this hand for North and South was four spades, bid and made.

The hand and bidding were:

South—Dealer.
East-West vulnerable.



The Bidding:

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South	West	North	East
1♠(1)	Pass	2♠	Pass
3NT(2)	Pass	4♠(3)	Pass
Pass	Pass

1—The Approach principle. When a hand contains a biddable suit, even a four-card minor, the suit and not the notrump should be preferred as an Opening bid.

2—With a partner strong enough to respond at all, South should insist upon playing the hand at a game contract. The bid of three notrump offers the Responding Hand a choice as to the proper game declaration.

3—North's hand would lose 1 trick in value if played at notrump. There is also the added danger of two weak unstopped suits.

In the play, West was directed to lead the diamond Queen, which is unquestionably the best lead on the hand. If East should attempt to obtain the lead by playing the King on this trick, then South must play the Ace, but if East plays a small diamond, then South, in order to fulfill his contract against the best defense, must refuse to win the first round of diamonds and take the second. The hand is then developed by leading the 8 of clubs from the closed hand and winning with the Ace in Dummy. The eight must be led in preference to the deuce, so that one of Dummy's small clubs will provide an additional entry, if needed, in the Dummy. The 9 of spades is next led from the Dummy, and when the finesse loses, West's best play is to return a trump, as the lead of any other suit might cost the defending players a trick.

South then draws the adverse trumps, taking the last round in Dummy, in order to finesse the clubs. When the club finesse wins, the Dummy hand is put in on the fourth club round by the lead of the deuce, in order to lead a heart from Dummy toward the closed hand. West, of course, wins this trick, but is helpless. His hand contains nothing but hearts and diamonds. To lead a diamond would permit South to discard a heart in one hand and ruff in the other; to lead a heart would give South the remaining heart tricks.

TODAY'S POINTER.

In determining whether a hand should be played at a suit or notrump, the primary question is whether a greater number of tricks are available at the suit bid.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

The bidding and play of the hand printed below will be discussed tomorrow:

South—Dealer.
East-West vulnerable.

Study the hand, decide how you would bid and play it and then compare the results you obtain with those shown in tomorrow's article.

The Homemaker

LAMB TERRAPIN MAKES TASTY DISH TO SET BEFORE FAMILY.

BY ALL the laws of the Medes and Persians we should have the tag ends of Sunday's rolled shoulder of lamb on the cupboard shelf ready for reconstruction. But since our column menu is planned not for tonight but for tomorrow (to provide ample time for marketing) we shall set aside all thought of these remnants for this evening and arrange for lamb terrapin tomorrow, a dish which surely you will agree is "different." But, what about tonight? It seems less than proper to leave one day of our week with no menu even thought of in our column. But it must be a simple repast, of things "on the shelf" or quickly to be had by sending Johnny to the corner grocery. Scrambled eggs and frankfurters, that would fill the bill for the moment, or perhaps scrambled eggs to which finely chopped bits of ham and small cut pieces of tomato and, if one desires, minced onion are added. These ingredients to be added to the eggs while raw, of course, and cooked with them. With this dish creamed potatoes may nicely be served, and tea muffins or popovers, and strawberries stewed with rhubarb as a dessert along with a piece of cake or cookies.

Thus, having arranged for a suggestion for this evening we may turn our attention to thoughts of tomorrow's lamb terrapin.

TUESDAY'S DINNER.
Lamb Terrapin
Macaroni and Cheese
Steamed Squash
Plain Muffins
Fruit Fluff
Tea or Coffee

Lamb Terrapin.

2 cupfuls cooked lamb—diced
2 tablespoonfuls butter or other fat
2 hard-cooked eggs
1 teaspoonful dry mustard
3 teaspoonfuls flour
3 teaspoonfuls Worcestershire sauce
1¼ cupfuls stock
Salt and pepper to taste

Remove excess fat from the lamb. Melt the butter, add the flour, mustard, salt and pepper and when blended add the stock and Worcestershire sauce. Cook for five minutes from the time it starts to boil. Add the diced lamb and the riced egg yolks. Heat and stir in the chopped egg whites. Serve on toast.

Baked Macaroni and Cheese.

Cook three-quarters cupful of macaroni in two quarts of salted boiling water until tender. Drain in a strainer and let cold water run over it, then drain again. Butter a baking dish and put a layer of the boiled macaroni in it with a sprinkling of grated cheese and dots of butter, then another layer of macaroni and a layer of grated cheese. Repeat this until all macaroni is used. Pour over a medium white sauce, but do not completely cover the macaroni with it. Put a layer of grated cheese and buttered breadcrumbs on top and bake until brown.

Plain Muffins.

2 tablespoonfuls sugar
4 teaspoonfuls baking powder
2 cupfuls flour
2 tablespoonfuls melted fat
1 cupful milk
1 egg
½ tablespoonful salt

Mix and sift salt, baking powder and flour. Add gradually the beaten egg to which the milk has been added. Stir in the melted fat and fill pans three-quarters full. Bake 20 to 30 minutes in a hot oven 400 to 425 degrees.

Fruit Fluff.

2 cupfuls berries
1 egg white
½ cupful thick cream
½ cupful sugar—powdered

Add half the sugar to the cream and stir until sugar is dissolved. Then add the stiffly beaten egg white. Place the fruit in a dish, sprinkle with the remaining sugar, pour on the cream mixture and serve at once.

THE WEIGHT GUIDE.

For individual assistance, write to Nancy Carey, sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope, and give age, weight, height and habits of life.

Answers to Readers.

Dear Miss Carey: I used to weigh 123 pounds, but have gained steadily until now I weigh 148. I am 24 years old and 5 feet 4 inches tall. I have a six-room house in which I do all the work and have a child 3 years old to take care of. Do you think it would be safe to take salts or something similar? M. G. G.

No, my dear, I should not advise the use of salts or any other reducing "remedy" without the advice of your physician. They are seldom helpful unless the eating and exercising habits are also changed, and, since they may be harmful in excess, why take such a chance? After all, good health means a very great deal. And there are so very few simple rules to follow in order to keep healthy—so many endless paths of search, when once health has been lost.

Now, about your weight: Since 125 pounds would be the best weight for your age and height, I strongly urge you to reduce before it becomes too difficult. As you grow older, you will find it less and less easy to control your appetite and take more regular exercise. So make up your mind now to watch your calories and your diet. This is all that should be necessary in connection with regular exercises. Try to take a brisk walk out of doors every day in addition to that necessary in the care of your home. Surely you can find time for it, especially when you realize how much it will mean.

Best of luck to you, and let us hear if you should like to have our folder of suggestions and menus for reducing. All that we need is your addressed, stamped envelope.

Salads Solve the Problem

Salads offer a delightful solution to the refreshment problem of innumerable occasions, but because they are such a reliable standby it is more difficult to attain distinction. "TAURUS."

IF May 2 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8:15 a. m. to 10 a. m., from 2:40 p. m. to 4 p. m., and from 7 p. m. to 8:15 p. m. The danger periods are from noon to 1 p. m. and from 10:30 p. m. to midnight.

The world will begin business on May 2 with a spirit of industry and optimism, and most plans will be pushed through with unusual ease. A frivolous mood will capture the evening hours, and the gods of happiness promise to make social functions a huge success from the standpoint of fun.

The child born on this May 2 will know its own mind, and will get its own way if it can. It will grow out of its childish stubbornness and develop into a being of decision and purpose. It will be courageous without being foolhardy.

Born on May 2, you have a brave, optimistic, fighting nature, and you do not easily chuck your hand in. It will be the things over which you seem to have no control that will beat you; not the things wherein yours is the master mind or hand. You never make a statement unless you are sure of your figures, and are known as a man or woman of your word. You have positive opinions, but they are not so set that you need to measure everything with your own yardstick.

There are times when you feel inarticulate, leaving much for translation. This is true about the tender, intimate things which you wish to say to people and can not. Your hand clasp, or eyes, often reveal more than your words have expressed. There are very few people with whom you really have mental kinship, and these few are of priceless value to you. You are often a very lonely and misunderstood being because of the isolation of your spirits.

You have money, sense and keen business acumen, and should enter one of the commercial fields of endeavor. Your pet hobbies and love of reading will keep you from ever becoming a slave to any job. One of your favorite gods is punctuality, which will be a lifelong habit with you. You will seldom be merrily happy, but you will know the restful contentment of a philosopher.

Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

CLARKIA AND OTHER GARDEN PLANTS.

CLARKIA is an old-fashioned garden flower which is again coming back into vogue. Every one this year will want some clarkia, especially some of the newer varieties.

Clarkia resembles stock, having double flowers on long spikes. It is easier to grow, however, than stocks, and is a bit more graceful in the border.

To grow clarkia successfully you must sow the seed quite early so the plants are established before hot weather sets in. You may sow the seed in the open ground and later thin it out. The flowers of this plant are well adapted for cutting. The plant usually attains a height of 16 inches. It should thrive in any place where the soil is light and not too rich. The life of the plants will be prolonged if you plant them where they will be partially shaded during the hot days of summer.

While midsummer heat may prove fatal to clarika, it is so easily grown that if you have one month of beautiful blossoms you will be repaid for your efforts. Then you can sow more seed during the summer and have another crop of flowers in the fall.

We all know and admire blue ageratum. We see it wherever we go. There are two outstandingly beautiful new varieties, which we should get whenever they are available. The Blue Ball and the Blue Star are varieties that are well suited for planting in some conspicuous place in our borders for porch decoration.

The dianthus, or sweet wivelsfield, is not so very new, though last year was the first time we ever saw it in the flower shows. It is like Sweet William and grows best in a cool atmosphere.

There are two new types of scabiosa which, if you can obtain them, you are sure to like: Loveliness and Coral Rose. Each year better colors and more dwarf species of scabiosa are being offered.

Horticulture is making great strides, old varieties are being improved and new varieties are being introduced each year. So we should try to add a new variety or two to our gardens each spring.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

CARE OF THE EXPECTANT MOTHER.

CANADIANS are driving to save some of the mothers lost by reason of maternity. Statistics show that more than 1,300 Canadian women die yearly because of accidents during pregnancy and child-birth. Dr. Helen MacMurchy thinks 1,000 of these lives could be saved. She estimates that one mother dies for each eighteen babies born, and that more than three-fourths of this loss could be prevented.

There can be no question that becoming a mother is hazardous—too much so in all parts of America—but it has been proved that our record is not as bad as it is usually painted. We keep these books differently from the way they are kept in other parts of the world, and some of the bad record charged against us is because of the bookkeeping methods we use. Be that as it may, the record is bad enough, and Dr. MacMurchy is right. It should be improved.

Dr. MacMurchy thinks a woman should be on her guard as soon as she learns that she is to become a mother and she should not overlook the pitfalls along the way. She should know the significance of everything that happens in a way different from the usual, and she should know whether it means anything.

For instance, does she notice that her wedding ring is too tight? That is a sign that she is accumulating fat or water in her tissues. It calls for periodic weighing and systematic keeping of the record. It may call for tests of the urine. The Canadian government publishes the "Canadian Mother's Book" and offers it free to every Canadian mother in need of it. It is one of a series of booklets written for prospective mothers and mothers of young children, given away by the Canadian government.

These books are supplemented by others given by the provincial and local governments. Books of a similar character are given away in the United States by the Federal and city governments.

"Every woman should have ten days' rest in bed after the baby comes," Dr. MacMurchy says. "She needs help in the home for about a month. She should have some sort of health supervision for about eight months before the baby comes and for a like period of time afterward.

One of the doctor's novel suggestions is that every woman's club should have one or two layettes always ready and available to homes where no proper provision has been made for the baby's clothes.

There are four groups of suggestions for prospective mothers not wholly covered in Dr. MacMurchy's booklet. They are: Protection against eclampsia by watching the weight, the blood pressure and the urine. Protection against venereal disease by blood testing and appropriate treatment. Protection against birth accidents by good hospital, medical and nursing service. Protection against a deficiency of vitamins and minerals by proper dieting.

PROBABLY IS ARTHRITIS.

H. G. writes: When I awake in the morning my fingers are very stiff and I can not bend them. I have to rub them for a long time before they are all right. Lately one finger is swollen at the joint and is very sore. My circulation seems poor. Could you tell me what to do for the trouble?

REPLY.

Probably you are having that form of arthritis which crooks the fingers of so many elderly people. Fortunately it is not serious. I do not know what you can do about it.

A new yoke effect that terminates in scarf-like ends at the front adds much interest to this slim-line model.

A novelty dotted crepe silk in blue and white with the yoke of plain white crepe is youthfully smart as its inspirator.

You couldn't ask for anything more simple to fashion. The bodice is in two sections. The yoke forms dropped shoulders. The skirt is gored and slightly circular. It is attached to the bodice.

It's a model that adapts itself splendidly to summer fabrics, as the lacy cotton meshes, linen, pique and tub silks.

BANKS STILL HOARDING.

Widespread dissatisfaction with the manner in which the banks are resisting the Federal Reserve policy of credit expansion is beginning to develop. Chairman Norbeck, of the Senate banking and currency committee, has threatened to subject the banks to the same sort of scrutiny that the committee has prescribed for Wall Street bears. Several other members of Congress have complained against the attitude the banks are taking toward the Federal Reserve policy. Unless the situation improves the public will not remain inarticulate.

A few months ago the banks were in desperate straits. People were withdrawing their money for hoarding. Banks were failing at an astounding rate. A plea for help went up from the bankers to Congress. Immediate action was taken on the recommendations of President Hoover. The public was induced to restore hoarded money to bank deposits. Now the banks are in a liquid position. The failure epidemic is ended and the Federal Reserve banks are doing their utmost to force their members to adopt a more liberal policy in extending loans to the public and making new investments.

Improvements may be noted in a few spots, but for the most part the banks have not responded to the credit expansion program. They are hoarding the money which the public and the Government has made available to them for the benefit of the country. During the last three weeks the Federal Reserve Banks have purchased Government bonds valued at about $306,000,000, giving member banks currency for them. It is reported that at least $150,000,000 of that sum is lying idle in the vaults of member banks because they refuse to pass on to the public the benefits of loosened credit.

Leading bankers in Wall Street have been in conference with Federal Reserve officials, and it is hoped that some concrete developments may result. The public is waiting anxiously to see what action the banks will take. If this credit expansion movement fails, it will bring in its wake a new wave of hoarding and the banks will be in a worse situation than before. These financial institutions should realize that they are on trial. The people will not stand by and watch the steady advance of economic ruin because bankers insist on keeping their vaults filled with sterile money to be ready for improbable emergencies. Bankers without faith in America are a menace to the economic system.

No one expects the banks to gamble on uncertain business enterprises. But there is no excuse for holding idle money in bank vaults when sound investments can be made and legitimate business and industry are in need of credit. Bankers who are unwilling to play their part in the credit expansion movement ought seriously to consider the disastrous alternative which confronts them.

FASCISM IN JAPAN.

In various quarters of the world definite reaction has set in against the sophistries of Communism. Germany offers the most striking positive demonstration with the Hitlerite forces attaining the position of the strongest political party in four states. Japan may easily be the next nation to show the strength of Fascism. The Fascists there by no means represent a majority of the people, but their strength lies in organization, which the opposition is entirely lacking.

Tokyo observers believe that the arrival of Prince Saionji, the last of the Genros, in the capital last month was all that averted a radical change in the government. Parliamentary rule might have been succeeded by a super-party cabinet. There are today upwards of 100 reactionary organizations in Japan, counting a membership of over 600,000 and, like the Fascists of Germany, they are militant and active.

One reason why the Fascists have not forced the situation is that they are so closely allied with the military element, and as this branch in Japan is independent of the civil administration, reporting directly to the emperor, it has been in control of the war activity in China in its own right. Japanese Fascists are loyal to the emperor. They believe the military forces best qualified to rule, and would do away with the parliament entirely. They are anti-capitalistic and would abolish the Japanese peerage.

A glance at the highlights of the platform of the Fascist organization known as the Japan State Socialist Party, which is typical, gives an idea of the sweeping changes which the reactionaries desire to inaugurate. Under a Fascist regime the administrative and judicial system would be disassociated from party politics and be under the supreme command of the emperor, with the states controlled by governors under the authority of the central government.

If Japanese Fascists should gain power they would likewise revolutionize business and property rights, taking over public utilities and inaugurating utility management by the state. They would create government monopolies for grain and various necessities, and put all communications, shipping, railways, air service, telegraph and telephones, as well as large commercial corporations in general, under state operation; while the stock exchange would be abolished.

The Fascists are securing support from the labor element with promises of drastic changes in labor laws and guarantees of a living wage and unemployment relief measures, the abolition of social discrimination, and entertainments to be provided by public management. In the international field Japanese Fascists would withdraw from the League of Nations and seek to effect the organization of a Far Eastern league. That Fascism is growing in Japan there seems to be no doubt, just as it is in Germany. In both nations violent changes may be averted by the authorities in power adopting some of the measures advocated by the opposition, and by the formation of coalition governments.

DUPING THE FARMERS.

Solicitude for the farmer is one of the most conspicuous earmarks of the modern politician. Every one recognizes that agriculture is suffering from deep-seated maladjustments in addition to the current miseries of depression. It is quite natural that politicians should aspire to do something for the farmer. The discouraging fact is that so many of them turn to quackery for the sole purpose of garnering farm votes.

The most recent champion of the farmer is Gov. Roosevelt, of New York. Something must be done, the governor said in his recent radio address, to raise the purchasing power of agriculture. At the same time he denounced the Smoot-Hawley tariff act. Whether he intended to link the two directly together is not certain; but he offered no other solution for the farmer's distress. Presumably he considers repeal of that act as an important element of farm relief.

This position is not original with Gov. Roosevelt. It is the official Democratic attitude. That party pretends to favor agriculture in its fight for more stable market conditions, but rejects the only practicable means of reserving the great American market for domestic producers. In view of the fact that the Smoot-Hawley law has brought extensive benefits to agriculture the Democratic farm champions are in a very awkward position.

Representative Underhill has gathered a generous supply of concrete evidence, showing the benefits to agriculture from the existing tariff rates. Since this law became effective imports of farm commodities have declined 50 per cent in volume. This means a larger market for foodstuffs produced by American farmers. Milk and cream imports fell off about 94 per cent; olive oil about 44 per cent, cattle hides 74 per cent. The market for American producers of eggs, wool, mohair, grain, vegetables and other farm commodities has been substantially extended. Declines in imports since the Smoot-Hawley act went into effect range from 8 to 75 per cent.

Mr. Underhill makes no mention of wheat, which sells for about 20 cents more on this side of the border than in Canada, because of the tariff. Under the 1922 tariff act butter imports amounted to 8,460,000 pounds per year, compared with 2,482,000 pounds, under the existing tariff. The market available to American farmers has been substantially broadened by the application of the protective tariff to agriculture.

These facts are embarrassing to the Democratic party. The more astute spokesmen of the party discuss the tariff and farm relief separately. They can not afford to insult the farmer by demanding the withdrawal of the only concrete relief he has been given in recent years. It is not surprising that Democratic leaders are hunting a formula of agricultural relief that will cover up their unwarranted assaults upon the protective tariff. If that party really intends to fight for repeal of the Smoot-Hawley act, it should offer a substitute that will yield equal benefit. Otherwise, an assault upon the tariff is an assault upon the welfare of the protected farmers, who now enjoy a home market which formerly was largely exploited by foreigners.

AMERICAN ARCHITECTURE.

No city in the world is more interested in architecture than is Washington. The Federal City has more buildings of monumental significance than any other city in America and is conceded to be the most beautiful metropolis in the western hemisphere. Each year adds to the architectural beauty of Washington, and brings the National Capital a step nearer to its ultimate goal as the most magnificent city in the world.

A poll of 50 leading architects conducted by The Federal Architect throws considerable light on the progress Washington is making in this direction. The architects were asked to designate those structures "whose architectural design was felt to be most satisfactory and appealing." Thirty-four buildings received two votes or more. Of that number nine were in Washington, twelve in New York, four in Chicago, and the remainder scattered through the States. In proportion to its size Washington far outranks any other city in architectural dignity and grace.

First on the list was the Lincoln Memorial, which was accorded 17 votes. The Empire State Building in New York was second with 14 votes, and the Nebraska State capitol took third place with 13 votes. Next came the Morgan Library and St. Thomas' Church, both in New York, and the Daily News building, Chicago. Structures in Washington which are included in the list are: The Scottish Rite Temple, the Folger Shakespeare Memorial Library, the Pan-American building, the Freer Art Gallery, the Academy of Science, the United States Capitol, the Southern Railway building, and the Federal Treasury.

It is noteworthy that the Capitol stands twenty-ninth on the list, receiving only two votes. That result is probably due to the fact that the Capitol remains uncompleted. Congress is guilty of woeful neglect in providing for the Capitol. Even in this era of extensive construction in the Federal City no allowance is made for completion of the most important building in America.

Almost without exception the buildings selected by the architects in Washington are in the classic style, while many of those selected outside of Washington are of modified or purely modern architecture. It is a well known fact that this city is being built up with classic structures and that the modern architecture, which is typically American, has only negligible representation. The tendency is for Washington to become unrepresentative of American architecture. In view of the majestic effects and the graceful lines that are being perfected by architects of the modern school, the neglect of this new type of architecture in Washington may some day be a source of regret. In the opinion of many unprejudiced observers the completed group of Federal buildings in the famous Triangle west of the Capitol will be disappointing, viewed as a whole, because the height of these massed structures will not be in proportion to their enormous ground area. No bold towers will relieve the roof monotony. The pre-eminence of the Capitol and the Monument is thereby preserved, but nevertheless the acres of classic columned facades and low roofs may lack the variety that lends charm to architecture.

CLOSING CUSTOM HOUSES.

A radical change must be made in the Senate's program if the country is not to suffer loss instead of reaping economy benefits from legislation now going through the hopper. The 10 per cent horizontal cut applied by the Senate to appropriation bills has been shown to be extravagant as well as unjust. The Treasury, especially, will lose if the bill now pending should become law.

Among other improvident results of the Senate's proposed cut will be the closing of the Georgetown custom house. Although this agency collected $300,000 last year at an expense of less than 15 per cent, it will be forced to close, together with 40 other custom houses, unless the Senate reconsiders its foolish program. The closing of the custom house serving Washington would necessitate the opening, examination, and repacking of foreign goods at the port of entry. Any one who has imported breakable goods knows what wreckage is made when such goods are subjected to the tender mercies of the inspectors in New York.

Custom houses are sources of revenue to the Government, and are necessary for the public convenience. The wholesale closing of these revenue-collecting agencies is anything but economical.

The reds of Europe promised a May-day slaughter, but finally refused to annihilate the police. Why this hesitancy in pushing forward the millennium?

SHAKESPEARE MEMORIALS

From the New York Times.

The Prince of Wales handsomely acknowledged the "very generous help" which had been forthcoming from America in the building of the new Shakespeare Memorial Theater at Stratford. Whatever has been given by Americans is not beyond our debt to the memory of the "myriad-minded" one whose "priceless heritage" we share. When Prince Hal asked Sir John Falstaff whether it was true that he had said to Mistress Quickly that the Prince owed Sir John a thousand pounds, Falstaff promptly replied: "A thousand, Hal? Thou owest me a million pounds. Thou owest me thy love." The world in owing Shakespeare its love owes far more than this greater sum, if, indeed, the intangible, spiritual thing could ever be reckoned in money.

It was estimated a few years ago that the number of persons in all the world in Shakespeare's time who could speak the English language was approximately 5,800,000, and few of them could read or write it. Now there are two or three hundred millions who speak the language of Shakespeare, and most of them can both read it and write it. If in the next 300 years English speech spreads at the same rate, the whole earth may not be of one tongue, but it will have English as one of its tongues. The old Greek motto, "Mortals have many languages, immortals one," may be slightly modified to the effect that while men may continue to have many languages they will all be able to understand that of Shakespeare.

Wadsworth defined it as the language of freedom in the lines:

> We must be free or die who speak the tongue
> That Shakespeare spoke.

It is also a language of unequaled richness and flexibility, which has given the world the greatest literature of beauty and aspiration since the Greek. Shakespeare in its use has deserved not only the homage of our hearts to whom his speech was a mother tongue, but of men of all nations, to whom, as the Prince of Wales said, he is "a universal friend." The Folger Memorial Shakespeare Library in Washington and the Furness Memorial in Philadelphia are fresh tributes far from Stratford to a genius who, as Ben Jonson wrote in the preface to the First Folio, "was not of an age but for all time."

Not long ago six Princeton professors were asked what ten works they would take with them if they had to spend the rest of their days on a desert island, and all included Shakespeare. If men caused to be put into their coffins what they most wished to take with them into their post-terrestrial exile (as did the Chaldeans, Egyptians and others in ancient times), many of them would have pockets made in their shrouds for a single volume edition of Shakespeare.

ENJOYMENTS OF AGE.

The saying that a man is as old as his arteries may be modified to read that a man is also as old as his bacteria. Infections and diet, says Dr. Lloyd Arnold, chief of the diagnostic laboratories of the Illinois State Department of Public Health, as quoted in the New York Sun, are the two factors that bring on premature senility. He says further:

> We live in a world heavily and densely populated with bacteria. Few of these germs are capable of producing disease in man. But those which are disease producers must get into our body through some body-covering surface, such as the skin, the lining membrane of the nose, throat or intestines. If our diet is well balanced or our habits are good we possess a natural resistance against these germs. We must live with them, they are around us, but we do not act as hosts to these ever-present guests. If we can keep our body in its proper state of function by diet and by our daily habits we are healthy. The sunset period of our life's cycle will be postponed, and when it does arrive we will be able to enjoy it.

Whereas our ancestors often began to be old at 40, Dr. Arnold says that modern man is just in his prime at 60; old age often does not begin to set in until 70 is well past. Since men can choose their own diet and control their own leisure they often have in their own hands the direction of the means of procuring those "enjoyments of ripe old age" which Dr. Arnold holds to be unlimited.

Why Overfeed the Calf if There Isn't Enough for the Children?

By ROBERT QUILLEN

IF you are an ordinary or average American you probably find it difficult to weep when Congress levies taxes to "soak the rich."

But there are three very good reasons why you should regard this program with fear and trembling.

In the first place, the rich are not taxpayers, but mere tax collectors. The tax they seem to pay is added to the cost of things you must buy and thus taken out of your pocket. Raising the taxes of the rich increases your cost of living.

In the second place, the rich control business and commerce and provide jobs for the rest of us. If they are crippled by taxation, or too seriously threatened by it, they invest their money in tax-free securities instead of expanding their enterprises and thus deprive ordinary men of their jobs. You can kill the goose that lays golden eggs, but that ends the egg crop.

In the third place, so long as our so-called "public servants" can balance the books by rifling the pockets of the rich, and so long as the rest of us approve of that method, no effort will be made to reduce expenditures.

There are just two ways to make ends meet. One is to spend less and the other is to tax more.

If the poor, who compose the majority, are indifferent to Government extravagance and waste because the rich seem to foot the bill, taxes will remain high. And every dollar will come out of the consumer's pocket.

There will be no relief until the ordinary man sees the truth and rebels—until he recognizes every tax as a burden for his own shoulders and demands relief.

National, State and local governments took only $2,000,000,000 from the public pocket in 1912. Now they take $12,000,000,000.

Out of every dollar earned in this country, whether wages, salaries, dividends or profits, the tax gatherer takes 20 cents. One-fifth of the national income is turned over to those who feed at the public trough.

Business can't improve until people have money to spend. And they will have little surplus to spend while one-fifth of their income is taken by the tax gatherers.

Take your choice. Either government or business must live on short rations. The people don't make money enough to provide abundance for both.

PRO AND CON

Press Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great American Show, "Politics."

Great American Swindle.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Sensational as they are, the revelations before the Senate banking and currency committee as to the practices of Wall street will not surprise the country. The country is fully aware of the gigantic swindles behind the great bull market and the foreign bond issues, and the investigations of the committee can only add details to what is already known.

Like the prior testimony as to how some of the Latin American issues were floated, the testimony of Representative LaGuardia was an interesting deal. He exhibited numerous canceled checks and said $286,000 had been paid to New York financial writers in rigging the market, the testimony involving men on several papers and financial journals. The trick, according to Mr. LaGuardia, was simple enough. The brokers who furnished the money wanted to boom certain stocks and bonds, and they paid the financial writers to talk them up in the press.

The country will know a great deal about Wall street before the investigation is over. It will learn that not the short sellers alone, but all the operators in the market, manipulate prices to enrich themselves. Short selling, as we have said before, is but one of the evils inherent in a vicious system. It is the system with which the country must deal. As operated now, it has the low morals of a crooked dice game, the conscienceless ness of an old-time game of faro. The casino at Monte Carlo is respectable beside it. The Louisiana lottery, which we long ago banned, was by comparison an honest game of chance.

Reverberation.

They call Al's speech an explosion and Franklin's reply a boom.

LaGuardia's Revelations.

Chicago Tribune.

The Senate banking committee has before it a good deal of evidence suggesting that some New York newspapermen betrayed the public and their employers. According to Representative LaGuardia, who presented the documents to the committee, these newspapermen were paid for giving publicity favorable to stock jobbers and pool operators. The public was misled into thinking the securities which were favorably mentioned were better than they really were. The public lost. The unscrupulous dealers and their allies of the financial pages profited.

Retrenchment.

If Congress keeps its ear to the grassroots, it will learn that the public is strongly in favor of a salary reduction for the National legislators and a reduction in their costly perquisites.

Those well-wishers who gave Garner the 7-foot gavel might focus their efforts now on a Government pruning knife of the same monumental proportion.

Major Evil.

Topeka Capital.

This country suffers enormously from legalized gambling on exchanges. More injury is done by great bull markets than selling short in hard times, since the bull markets create the hard times, while short selling only prolongs them and retards recovery. If exchanges can be restricted to market places where people merely sell what they own and buy what they pay for, gambling would not be the major evil that it is in prohibiting orderly prosperity.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Mr. Knott Discusses Federal Employes' Gift to Community Chest and Expresses Fear of Demoralization From Pay Cuts.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Federal employes were asked—in fact, it was almost exacted of them—to give $1,000,000 to the Community Chest. The broad implication was then given that there would be a cut in Federal salaries. So far as I have heard there has been no cut in the salary of Community Chest executives.

There has been no move, so far as anybody has heard, to remove that audacious piece of graft known as "mileage" from governmental extravagance. Nor has there been any move to cut down the expenses which come from all sorts of congressional perquisites and franks.

The little which will be saved by a cut in the salaries of Federal employes will be negligible compared with the harm that will come of it and the demoralization which will result. J. O. KNOTT.

Bank Stockholder Demands Retirement From Directorates of Men Who Gamble in Stocks.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editorial, "Public Robbery," which hits at the short raiders on Wall street, is of the character that ought to appear in every newspaper all over the country regularly for the next twelve months or longer unless the pirates are sooner jailed. If the stock exchange itself can not make and enforce such rules as will make it impossible for these financial pirates to drive prices of securities and commodities down far below their intrinsic values and thereby add to the already sorely depressed conditions, then Congress should see to it that the necessary corrective legislation is speedily enacted.

Public opinion should so assert itself as to force the removal of gamblers from bank directorates. No stockholder of one of these banks can or will feel secure so long as stock gamblers are among the directors. Nor can any single depositor feel safe so long as the management of the bank is made up in part of men who rig the market.

Regardless of whether any reform measures result from this investigation, the stockholders of banks which now number among their directors men who have been revealed as stock speculators should demand their retirement from the board of directors.

Utah Reader of The Post Supports Tariff on Copper.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Complete tariff protection for copper is the only salvation for the West. The success of our business life in all its branches depends upon substantial tariff protection. Without this protective consideration from our Government we might just as well leave all hope behind.

There never was a time in the history of this Nation, from Washington's time down, when there was greater need for an assembly of big men in Washington. We have the best form of government on earth. President Hoover is a very strong character and possesses wonderful executive ability with excellent judgments in all matters, and no doubt will be largely instrumental in getting us out of our present difficulties.

With a proper tariff on copper our industrial activities in the West would start off again with a bang.

Railroad Valuation Bureau Keeps Tab of All Current Changes.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The editorial "True and False Economy" appearing in The Post in the morning issue of April 22, 1932, makes the following statement with respect to valuation of the railroads: "The time consumed in making these valuations renders the figures worthless because of the changes made in the interval."

The Bureau of Valuation of the Interstate Commerce Commission keeps itself informed currently of all changes made in the carriers' properties subsequent to the primary valuation dates; hence, the valuation of any one carrier or all the carriers can be brought down to a current date. I am sure that in view of these facts you can readily see that the data collected by the bureau of valuation are right up to date and are not worthless. EMPLOYE.

What matter wind or bitter weather
If we can brave them out together?
What matter poverty or pain
If sharing them we can remain?
Is it important we should be
From every dreadful doubting free?
Together we have strength to bear

Together, with the family whole
We can develop strength of soul.
And find that rapture and delight
Of being strong and keeping right.

VOTING TODAY ENDS MONTGOMERY DRIVE

Candidates for Offices End Heated Campaigns; Many Seeking Election.

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post, 9103 Conn. Ave., North Chevy Chase, Md. Telephone Wisconsin 4208.

Heated contests are being waged in three of the town elections which will be held today in Montgomery County, Md., those at Takoma Park, Rockville and Somerset. Primary elections of the Republican party also will be held today in the various voting places of the county.

The Takoma Park election features a particularly bitter contest in which the incumbent, Mayor Ben G. Davis, who has held that office for a generation, is opposed by Frederick L. Lewton, running on the platform of the nonpartisan committee for home rule. Charges and counter-charges have been issued by the candidates. The contest appears to be a fight between the antiadministration forces and Democratic administration forces, of which Mayor Davis is a member. Three members of the town council are unopposed for re-election, Peter Remsen, R. G. Sherburne and Irvine H. Ware.

In Rockville a party calling itself the Business Men's party has placed a ticket in the field to oppose the incumbents. This also appears as an administration and antiadministration line-up. Mayor J. Roger Spates, who also has been the incumbent for many years, is opposed by D. M. Blandford.

Fight on for Councilmen.

Three organization councilmen, H. W. Talbott, Joseph L. Claggett and J. Paul Brunett are opposed by Edgar Reed, Thomas N. Anderson and Curtis L. Ward, while the candidate for the fourth place on the council, Cooke A. Robertson, to succeed State's Attorney Stedman Prescott, who resigned, is indorsed by both parties.

Mayor Spates and his group are conducting more or less of a back porch campaign. Mayor Spates told newspapermen that he never had waged a campaign for the office and that he was quite willing to retire if the citizens of the town decided they were not willing to support him without exhortation. The opposition group is carrying on an intensive campaign.

In Somerset there are two candidates for mayor, J. W. Stohlman and Charles S. Moore, while six candidates are contesting for the three posts on the town council—Howard R. Watkins, James I. Hambleton, A. W. Starratt, O. H. Gish, August Werner and George W. Bryan.

Mayor William M. Bain is assured of reelection in Gaithersburg, as there is no opposition to his candidacy. Three candidates seek the two posts on the town council—George Marshall and Leslie Ward, incumbents, and Brawner Harding.

Poolesville Campaign Quiet.

The election in Poolesville is so quiet that the candidates for reelection do not know who are running. Dr. S. B. Milford, mayor, is understood not to be in the race this year, while Harry L. Willard, H. W. Spurrier, Miss Clara Price anad G. R. Gray are candidates for reelection to the council. The mayor is elected from the council after the town election by the members of the council.

In the Republican primaries, former Senator Joseph France and Herbert Hoover are named as candidates for the nomination for Republican candidate for President, while State Senator Wallace Williams, of Cecil County, and former Representative Linwood L. Clark are candidates for the Republican nomination for United States senator, to oppose Senator Millard F. Tydings, the Democratic incumbent. Harold C. Smith, of Rockville, has no opposition for the Republican nomination for representative, to oppose the incumbent, Representative David J. Lewis.

Pupils' Aid Asked In Fete on July 18

Woodson Sends Letter to Schools of Fairfax Urging Entrance.

Superintendent Wilbert T. Woodson, of the Fairfax County schools, has sent a letter to all schools of the county urging participation in the Fairfax County Bicentennial Celebration at the county courthouse on July 18, the anniversary of the signing of the "Fairfax Resolves" in 1774. A meeting of the teachers in connection with the Bicentennial celebration will be held tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock in the county school board room at Fairfax.

Each high school of the county has been asked to stage a 10-minute tableau, appropriate to the occasion. An effort is being made to prevent duplication of scenes, and subjects will be selected which require few members and costumes. Teachers who plan to remain in the county during the summer will have charge of the preparations.

Superintendent Woodson also has sent a letter to the teachers calling their attention to the fact that in the past many of the schools have spent too much time in getting up programs particularly for commencement.

Fire Cost Charge Denied by Hilley

Holds Brookens Errs in Saying Force Gets 20 Per Cent of Tax.

Statements that the Hyattsville Fire Department receives more than 20 per cent of the town's tax receipts, which were made in a letter sent to the voters of the Fourth Ward by Dr. Perley F. Brookens, candidate for councilman, were denied last night by E. B. Hilley, who is running against Dr. Brookens.

Mr. Hilley says that during the last four years the fire department has received less than 10 per cent of the tax receipts. This does not include the amount spent for the new pumper, he said, but the pumper cost should not be included in the amount charged to the fire department. The pumper tax of 10 cents per $100 was accepted by the voters at a special referendum, and does not go for the upkeep of the department, he contends. Furthermore, as the equipment is paid for, the tax will not be levied next year, he added. zzz

Dr. Brookens' letter, asking the support of the voters, inclosed a statement of Caesar L. Aiello, certifying that Dr. Brookens was legally nominated. Mr. Hilley also took exception to this, stating that Mr. Aiello was not present at the nominating convention.

CAR SPACE AVAILABLE AT MASONIC PARADE

Two Large Plots Obtained for Alexandria Event on May 12.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU. 907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va. Phone Alexandria 523.

For the convenience of Washingtonians who will visit Alexandria on May 12 for the Masonic parade and dedication of the Washington Masonic Memorial special arrangements have been made by the dedication committee of the Grand Lodge of Virginia for parking of automobiles.

Two large spaces capable of parking 5,000 cars have been obtained. Both are within a block of the grand stand on King street, before which the parade will pass, and within three blocks of the memorial. One is the grounds of the Alexandria High School, surrounded by Princess, Cameron and West streets. To reach these grounds the route from Washington is via the Mount Vernon boulevard to the corner of Princess and Washington streets, thence five blocks west. The other is the triangle between King, Duke and Diagonal road, immediately adjoining the Union Station. These are best reached from the south or west via South Washington or Duke streets. Through traffic lines will be kept open to these parking places so there will be no delays in reaching or leaving them.

Parking space may be reserved in advance and tickets have been placed on sale in Washington at the bureau of T. Arthur Smith, 1330 G street. Grand stand tickets may be obtained also at the bureau.

The tracks and other equipment of the trolley line formerly operating between Alexandria and Arlington Junction are being removed except on the paved streets of the city. It is stated that city council is considering the enforcement of the provisions of the charter to compel the owner of the line, R. L. May, to remove the tracks in the city proper and replace the paving.

Rails and wires are being salvaged and the cable in the city was removed last week.

Mrs. Emmaline Chauncey, 89 years old, died yesterday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. C. R. Hupp, 605 South Fairfax street. She was the widow of Thomas A. Chauncey.

Woman Is Injured On Frederick Road

Auto Strikes Her and Then Pushes Another Into Two Wrecked Cars.

An accident on the Frederick road just south of Clarksburg, Md., early yesterday, involving three cars, sent a colored woman to the hospital in a critical condition and caused the arrest of a white man.

Alice Forman, colored, living in that section, was knocked down and run over by an automobile said to have been driven by Bert Wolfrey, of Germantown, Md. She was removed to the office of Dr. Stanley Barber at Gaithersburg, and, after receiving emergency treatment, was transferred to Georgetown Hospital where her condition is critical with internal injuries.

A car driven by John L. Burdette, of Boyds, Md., and one driven by James S. Mason, of Clarksburg, collided. A short time later, Robert L. Murphy, of Gaithersburg, stopped near the scene to view the wreckage. The woman was walking down the road and as she drew near Murphy's car was struck by Wolfrey's car, which, after passing over her body, crashed into Murphy's car and drove it into the other wrecked cars.

Wolfrey attempted to flee, according to police, but was arrested and is being held pending outcome of the woman's injuries.

LUGGAGE, FOURTH FLOOR

TRIBUTE OF UKRAINE IS PAID WASHINGTON

Famous Chorus and Ballet From Across Sea Give Performance Here.

Washington music lovers and devotees of Terpsichore rejoiced last night at the concert and ballet given by the Ukrainian Chorus and Ballet at the new Washington Auditorium. The performance was part of a tour of 30 cities offered by the Ukrainian Bicentennial Committee in honor of George Washington.

The Ukrainian Chorus, under the direction of Alexander Koshetz, proved a musical aggregation of great vocal beauty. The orchestra-like quality of the singing was charming, all compositions being sung a cappella, that is, unaccompanied.

Prof. Koshetz, who is noted for his work in assembling and arranging the beautiful solk songs and great ritual hymns of his native land, had the chorus under perfect control last night. The ensemble tone was of rare loveliness and the absolute pitch and harmonious production did the leader much credit.

Handled Singers Effectively.

The professor handled the singers very quietly, but effectively, and they were responsive to his slightest movement or gesture. Much of the vocal portion of the program was given over to a portrayal of the Ukraine's folk song in America, while the glorious first number, "A Chant to St. George," was stirring and animated, and was followed with an ovation.

Among the other vocal selections were "You Little Azure Star," "Chornomoretz," a song of the Black Sea Cossacks, and a "Psalm on Christ's Suffering," to a lovely setting by Prof. Koshetz.

The terpsichorean abilities of the ballet equaled the wonderful voices of the chorus. The ballet pictures and dances had been arranged by Vasile Avramenko, and they were enhanced by the dancers wearing their colorful national costumes.

About 300 Take Part.

Approximately 300 participated in the performance to evidence their appreciation for the freedom this country has given them. Symbolic folk dances to express their gratitude were presented. One of the dances entitled "Cranes Flying Over the Ocean to the Land of Promise," symbolized the hope of a happy existence in America.

Senator Royal S. Copeland, of New York, who explained the significance of the ballet and chorus, described the tribute to Washington as an art created by the people, and for the people. He said: "This folk art, born of the fertile soil of the Ukraine, of dramatic and tragic past, is a heritage of the new American of Ukrainian descent, which they offer to incorporate in the culture of America."

Judging from the splendid performance last night, the Ukrainian Chorus and Ballet will win much plaudits during its tour of 30 American cities this month.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

IT is, I think, a bit extravagant to denominate "The Doomed Battalion," now playing to enthusiastic crowds at the Rialto Theater, another "All Quiet on the Western Front." It falls something short of making good the boast, but is, nevertheless, a picture so apart from the usual run that no discriminating amusement seeker should permit it to depart unseen.

"All Quiet on the Western Front" possessed a quality beyond the mere power to thrill by its realistic depiction of the horrors of the modern battlefield. It reflected the dire psychological effect of war upon the viewpoint, the spirit and the capacity to carry on of the flower of the youth of any land. "The Doomed Battalion" does not plumb to such depths as this. It is content to present a single episode of the war, pictured against a majestic natural setting so magnificent as to permit it to become a masterpiece of scenic beauty as well as a dramatic subject of tense interest.

Throughout the sequences to which the little garrison, upon whom has been imposed the duty of holding their position at all costs, are being undermined by the enemy sappers who are packing great stores of high explosives under the mountain peak preparatory to blowing it to bits, the audience reaction is identical with that created by the dramatized incident from the Sepoy Rebellion that bears the stage title of "The Drums of Oude"—the only production, insofar as I am aware, that the late David Belasco ever made for vaudeville.

I mean to say that "The Doomed Battalion," in comparison with "All Quiet," like a short story in comparison with a novel, adheres only to a single event and the circumstances leading both up to and away from it. But I found it consistently interesting, and at times packed with suspense.

While the scenes in the Dolemite Alps are, of course, authentic and indescribably impressive in their imposing panoramas, the headquarters and dugout scenes were in large part filmed in Hollywood, where such familiar actors as Gustav von Seyffertitz, C. Henry Gordon, Gibson Gowland and Henry Armetta were easily accessible. The former constituted the scenic beauty of the original Marcel Vandal-Charles Dulac production.

"The Doomed Battalion," under any circumstances, is a picture not to be missed.

Already inquiries are being showered upon this department as to the details of the silent version of "The Miracle Man"—which started Tomas Meighan, Betty Compson and Lon Chaney on the road to individual stardom—prompted, naturally, by the presentation of the new audible version of the famous story at the Earle Theater this week. Most of them relate to the former cast. As if I could remember everything!

Thanks to the thoughfulness of Frank La Falce, of the Warner publicity department, however, I am able, just this once, to come through. In fact, we might quite as well go clear back to the George M. Cohan stage play, put on in 1914, and cast this "Miracle" business right down to date.

Very well, then, in the stage play Helen was played by Gail Kane; "Doc" Morgan, by George Nash; the "Frog," by James C. Marlowe; Patriarch, by William H. Thompson; the atheist, by Clifford Dempsey; the crippled boy, by Percy Helton; pickpocket, by Earle Brown; millionaire, by Frederick Maynard; invalid girl, by Gerrie O'Brien; hotel owner, by Frank Bacon, afterward famous for his "Lightnin';" his daughter, by Mary Murphy.

In the silent picture the same roles in the same order were played by Betty Compson, Thomas Meighan, Lon Chaney, Joseph Dowling, William V. Mong, Frankie Lee, J. M. Dumont, W. Lawson Butt, Elinor Fair, P. A. Turner and Lucille Hutton.

In the present version—but go see for yourself. It's worth it.

It will be of interest to his 500,000 friends in Washington know that Fred Waring's engagement at the Roxy Theater in New York will terminate on May 13. Fred and his Pennsylvanians, serving as the nucleus of a large pit orchestra, have been playing at the largest theater in the world since January 1 and creating new novelties each week. They have been a tremendous hit.

Notwithstanding all this, a symphony orchestra of 80 pieces, under the conductorship of Dr. Hugo Riesenfeld, whose name is closely linked with the development of picture house music on Broadway, will return to the Roxy on the date mentioned, it has been decided by the board of directors.

Hey, you Johnny Payette and Guy Wonders, how about bringing the boys back to the Earle for the twenty-fifth week in your pretty houses?

And if you must know, Clara Bow has signed for one picture for Fox with options for others to follow. Sam Rork is on the Fox staff as supervisor of the film, which bears the title, I believe, of "Her Savage"—just a good, old Bow title!

Participants in the senior instrumental group and the senior choral group, as well as noncompeting piano students, will be heard on the Fox Theater stage today in programs of ten minutes each scheduled as part of the theater's Second Annual Music Week Festival.

At 3:30 Master Irving Phillips and Innis Skinner, pupils of the Von Unschuld University of Music, will play Bizet's "Menuet de l'Arlesienne," as a piano duet, and Miss Adele Meriam, pupil of the same university, will play "Fantasia on Hungarian Folks," with accompaniment on a second piano by Mme. Marie von Unschuld.

At 6:24 the Institute of Musical Art Symphonic Orchestra, with C. E. Christiani conducting, will render "Allegro Confusco," from the G-Minor Concerto by Mendelssohn, with piano solos by Glenn Carow. This organization, which will compete in the senior instrumental group for one of the four silver loving cups offered by the theater management, won the theater's cup award last year for first honors in the instrumental group.

At 8:59 the American University Men's Glee Club, under the leadership of Harlan Randall, will sing "Winter Song," by Bullard, "Shadow March," by Protherce, and "Jerusalem Morning," in competition for the senior choral cup.

Wesley Eddy will not return to the Palace to inaugurate his indefinite engagement as master of ceremonies on next Friday, May 6, as announced, but will make his initial appearance locally with the first Loew program presented at Loew's Fox Theater one week later, Friday, May 13, when the new arrangement, fully outlined in other columns of today's issue of The Post, goes into effect.

Well you've waited this long, surely you can wait one more week!

Forcing of Child On State Rapped

Director of St. Gertrude's Speaks on Catholic Radio Hour.

The attitude of the Catholic charity that neglects the problem child and turns it over to the state was deplored by Dom Thomas V. Moore, director of St. Gertrude's School of Arts and Crafts, in a radio address yesterday from the Church of the Immaculate Conception.

In his address, on the Washington Catholic Radio Hour, Dr. Moore said: "Every problem child that Catholic education throws on the world is like infectious material which to save trouble is thrown here and there and everywhere to grow and develop and become the source of contamination to many."

The Rev. S. A. Czyz presided at the service. The musical program was provided by Miss Kathryn Bowers, contralto; Miss Florence Yocum, soprano; Miss Ann Arlen, violinist, and the Boys' Sanctuary Choir under direction of Harry Wheaton Howard.

POST RECORD TEST OVER WOL TONIGHT

More Entries in R. C. A.-Victor Competition to Be Heard at 7 o'Clock.

The Washington Post at 7 o'clock this evening will present the third in a series of radio programs from station WOL designed to give contestants in the recent Post-R. C. A. Victor recording contest an additional thrill and also to give the general public an opportunity to hear the fine talent that has been revealed by this unique contest.

News of developments in the judging of nearly 5,000 records submitted in the competition will also be given at this time.

Participants in the radio programs are chosen indiscriminately from the list of contestants and such selection has no bearing on the ultimate decision of the judges. So far as possible The Washington Post desires to give the opportunity of broadcasting to those who have not previously had the experience and a written request to The Post to be placed on one of these interesting programs will receive serious consideration.

Lawyers from all parts of the United States, who are interested in the revision of the national bankruptcy laws and judicial reforms, will organize the National Association of Federal Practitioners at a meeting at the Raleigh Hotel, 10 a. m. today.

The organization was started in Philadelphia, and at a meeting there, committees were appointed to study the bankruptcy bill for a report to the meeting today. The movement for the association spread to other parts of the country and a Nation-wide representation is expected at the meeting.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

"WEREN'T WE ALL?" or "GRILLING A GRILLER."

WITNESS: A United States Congressman.

Q.—Mr. Congressman, did you participate in the bull market?

A.—Do you know anybody who didn't?

Q.—Did you buy common stocks?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you know very much about these stocks?

A.—All I knew was what my barber told me.

Q.—How about the ashman?

A.—Well, he gave me a few tips, too.

Q.—Didn't you personally look into the values behind these stocks or make any attempt to do so?

A.—No.

Q.—Why not?

A.—I was afraid that if I took time to investigate I might be late getting aboard.

• • • •

Q.—Now then, what was your purpose in buying stocks?

A.—I wanted to make money.

Q.—Exactly. But did you regard them as something to put away as an investment?

A.—No, I guess not.

Q.—You didn't intend to hold them for income?

A.—At those bull market levels I wasn't that crazy.

Q.—When you made a certain profit you intended to sell them, did you not?.

A.—Yes sir.

Q.—At what point would you sell?

A.—At a point where I felt that holding any longer would be dangerous.

Q.—Your aim, like that of most people in the market, was to get out as close to the top as possible, was it not?

A.—I suppose so.

Q.—And for you to get out you would have to sell your stock to some other buyer?

A.—Of course.

Q.—And if you were right in your judgment that you were getting the top price, this other buyer would get stuck when the break came?

A.—Yes, if you put it that way.

Q.—To put it plainly, you were trying to clean up on the gullibility of the other fellow and leave him holding the bag?

A.—Must you put it that plainly?

Q.—YOU wanted to see the market soar and the higher it went the better you liked it?

A.—Yes.

Q.—So that you were doing your part to kindle enthusiasm, keep up the hysteria and get stocks up to prices all out of line with any visible values?

A.—Now look here, I object. I didn't know anything about their values.

Q.—That's just my point. You didn't really know whether the stocks you bought at say $100 were worth thirty cents, did you?

A.—This isn't fair.

Q.—Yet, you were willing to hold them until they went much higher and then sell them to the other fellow?

A. I object.

Q.—And you knew, did you not, that in the end somebody would get stuck?

A.—I suppose so.

Q.—And did you care who it was as long as it wasn't you?

A. I refuse to answer.

Q.—On what ground?

A.—On the ground this is getting too embarrassing.

A MERCHANT SOLILOQUIZES.

(Optimistic predictions notwithstanding.)

I stand within the doorway of my shop
And watch the crowd with speculative eye;
I gaze and pray that some of them will stop;
A more than futile hope. I don't know why
I watch the business rushing, rushing by.

Then I ponder, in my mute soliloquy,
On that unscrupulousness that I lack—
With more than willing pleasure I would be
The victim of a pyromaniac.

NATS TRIUMPH OVER YANKEES, 4-2, BEFORE 27,000

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

PROSPERITY turned the corner into Griffith Stadium, at least, yesterday with 27,000 souls present and accounted for at the turnstiles which clicked more merrily than on any other occasion this season.

Washington is leading the American League this morning with only 138 more games to play.

Joe Judge, who was on his good behavior all day, committed a piece of grand larceny against Crossetti in the first inning. Lloyd Brown was an accessory after the fact, helping Judge to get away with the plunder by hustling over to the bag and taking the toss after Joe had made a smart stop of the hot grounder.

Heinie Manush put himself in solid with the left field bleacher fans with his triple in the first inning and was a recipient of a big hand when he took his place in the outfield again. He is cultivating a large circle of friends among the regular bleacher customers.

Lloyd Brown threw two men out after clever stops of bouncers into the pitcher's box in the second inning. The Nats have five infielders when Brownie is out there on the hill.

"Hit into the bullrushes, Moses," a fan in the vicinity of the press box yelled at Moe Berg in the second inning. Moe didn't follow the advice exactly but he beat out a hit to Eddie Farrell.

Berg overcame a batting weakness yesterday. In his few games this year, he had hit a double, a triple and a home run, but could never connect with a single until he beat out the hit to Farrell.

Buddy Myer made a clean steal of home in the minds of 27,000 fans in the second inning, but Umpire Bill McGowan was not included in that number. Everybody saw Myer slide into the plate safely on Ruffing's wind up—everybody but McGowan.

Eddie Farrell rammed a hot shot at Bluege in the third inning that skidded out of the third baseman's glove and dropped behind him. Twenty-seven thousand fans saw the ball laying on the baseline, but it required a long and diligent search by Bluege before he was able to spot it again. Even after this delay, Bluege was able to throw out Farrell at first. Farrell was proceeding down the baseline with all the agility of an ultraslow motion snail.

Brown started a double play on Gehrig's hot shot into the box in the third, but the machinery slipped a cog when Cronin failed to touch second base on the relay to first.

Umpire Brick Owens came through with a fine stop of Chapman's liner in the third to help Brown out of a hole. Owens fielded the ball with his back and Ruth, who was on second had to hold his base. Owens' assist didn't get into the box score, but it was appreciated just the same.

It never fails. Joe Judge made a brilliant play on Farrell to end the Yankees' fourth and then was first at bat in the Nats' half of the inning to receive the crowd's plaudits while the fielding feat was still fresh in the minds of the crowd.

The game was replete with clever fielding plays but the fielding feature of the day, from the business office's point of view was Reynolds' catch of Chapman's fly that completed four and a half innings and put the gate safely in the till with skies still overcast.

Ruffing threw Myer a slow ball in the fifth inning, but there was nothing slow about it when Myer bounced the pitch to right fielder for his third hit of the day.

Joe Judge was set to field Crossetti's grounder in the sixth when the ball shied at a pebble and took off in a high arc over Joe's surprised countenance into right field for a single.

Lloyd Brown retired the Yankees

South's Title At Stake Tonight

Godwin, Phelps Will Meet for Light-Heavy Crown.

Other Good Battles on Card Tonight at Portner's.

PORTNER ARENA tonight is the scene of the most attractive prize fight in this vicinity in years. The offering of the Alexandria house of punch is a battle for the Southern light-heavyweight championship between Bob Godwin and Cowboy Owen Phelps, two of the Nation's leading scrappers in their division.

The bout tops a 30-round program for the benefit of the Alexandria Day Nursery, which has announced there will be no advance in ticket prices though the match is the most expensive of the season. It is listed for eight rounds.

Both Outstanding Fighters.

Never since the Nursery shows were inaugurated last November have two such evenly matched and outstanding boxers been brought together. Godwin variously is ranked from fourth to sixth best light-heavy in the world, while Phelps boasts a rating just a couple of pegs lower.

Though Godwin holds the Dixie crown at present, the experts generally concede him only a slight edge. Some pick the challenger.

Godwin, who has pleased before at Portner's in victories over Billy Schwartz, Sammy Weiss, Eric Lawson and Reds Barry, has been pushing his way to the front nationally for the past year. He captured the title about two months ago by defeating Joe Knight in Miami, Fla.

Phelps has a record excelling the champion's in that he has beaten a greater number of good boxers. The former Arizona cowpuncher holds victories over Larry Johnson, Fred Lenhart, Charley Belanger, Roy "Tiger" Williams and Angus Snyder. He also has fought a draw with Maxie Rosenbloom, whom most boxing critics regard as world's champion.

In an eight-round semifinal the management introduces a newcomer in Harry "Beebe" Barron, New York lightweight, who will be met by Clarence Sloat, hard-punching Baltimorean. Barron is said to be a clever boxer, well regarded in his home precinct. This bout is likely to end in a knockout if Sloat's right hand is in old form.

Three Four-Round Preliminaries.

A trio of four-round preliminaries present Billy Essinger, Washington, vs. Buck Taylor, Baltimore; Sammy Britt, Philadelphia, vs. K. O. Burns, Baltimore, and Roddy Davis, Washington, vs. Mike Hohlman, Baltimore.

First bout at 8:30.

BOXING BITS' SELECTIONS—Godwin to defeat Phelps; Barron to conquer Sloat; Essinger to shade Taylor; Britt to beat Burns, and Davis to outpoint Hohlman.

Model Yacht Regatta Scheduled Here May 14

A model yacht regatta for boys and girls under 19 years of age will be held May 14 on the Lincoln Reflecting Pool as part of the "Festival of Youth" program.

Entries for the regatta are being received at Room 318, District Building, where entry blanks also may be procured.

All competing boats must be of yachting design, Marconi rigging or schooner with lead keel sufficient to stabilize the pull of the sail. The crew of each boat will consist of a skipper and mate.

Middies Keen to Play Army With Washington as Site

Special to The Washington Post.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., May 1.—The proposal to bring the Military and Naval Academy football teams together next fall in the National Capital as a feature of the Washington Bicentennial celebration, struck a popular chord among the regiment of midshipmen.

As far as the Middies are concerned they are always keen to meet the rival cadets in any branch of sports, no matter what site may be chosen for a contest. Several of the embryo officers who take active part in athletic and other affairs at the academy today voiced approval of the Washington plan. "Of course," said one, "the regiment has nothing to do with arranging such matters, but you can take it that Washington suits us fine."

Another ventured the suggestion that the Nation's Capital is the logical place for the service teams to clash, and pointed out that the contest this year would be particularly appropriate because of the Bicentennial celebration.

PENN RELAY MARKS ARE HIGHER

East's Athletes Excel Nine Drake Relay Times.

NEW YORK, May 1 (A.P.)—The annual check-up on comparative times and distances in the Penn and Drake relays reveals a slight edge for the Eastern classic. In the events for which direct comparisons can be drawn, better performances in nine were turned in at Philadelphia. In eight others, the Drake relays excelled. One, the pole vault, was a stalemate, 13 feet 6 inches winning that event both at Des Moines and Philadelphia.

Five of Eight Penn Relay Times Faster.

Better times were recorded at Philadelphia in five of the eight relays and in four of the seven field events, excluding the pole vault, comparisons could be made in only two individual track events, the 100-yard dash and the 120-yard high hurdles, and in both Drake relays led by a wide margin.

A table of comparisons between the Drake and Pennn relays follows:

Quarter mile relay—Penn, 42 seconds; Drake, 42.2 seconds.

Half mile relay—Penn, 1 minute 27 seconds; Drake, 1 minute 27.3 seconds.

Mile relay—Penn, 3 minutes 15.4 seconds; Drake, 3 minutes 19.1 seconds.

Two-mile relay—Penn, 7 minutes 54.2 seconds; Drake, 7 minutes 48.8 seconds.

Four-mile relay—Penn, 17 minutes 50.6 seconds; Drake, 18 minutes 4.2 seconds.

Sprint medley relay—Penn, 3 minutes 28.6 seconds; Drake, 3 minutes 31 seconds.

Distance medley—Penn, 10 minutes 21.6 seconds; Drake, 10 minutes 19.1 seconds.

480-yard shuttle relay—Penn, 1 minute 2.5 seconds; Drake, 1 minute 1.6 seconds.

100-yard dash—Penn, 9.9 seconds; Drake, 9.5 seconds.

120-yard high hurdles—Penn, 14.8 seconds; Drake, 14.4 seconds.

High jump—Penn, 6 feet 5⅝ inches; Drake, 6 feet 3½ inches.

Pole vault—Penn, 13 feet 6 inches. Drake, 13 feet 6 inches.

Javelin throw—Penn, 208 feet 2¾ inches; Drake, 191.69 feet.

Broad jump—Penn, 22 feet 7 inches; Drake, 24 feet 8¾ inches.

Shot put—Penn, 50 feet; Drake, 50 feet ½ inch.

Hop, step and jump—Penn, 47 feet 9¾ inches; Drake, 47 feet 5 inches.

Hammer throw—Penn, 157 feet 9¾ inches; Drake, 152.80 feet.

Discus—Penn, 143 feet ¾ inch; Drake, 148.7 feet.

HEAVIER FOE SIGNED FOR RUSSIAN

Getteson Meets Vakturoff on Mat at Bolling.

NEW face number six yesterday was added to the weekly "rassle" card scheduled for Bolling Field armory tomorrow night at 8:30.

Through special arrangements and after much dickering, Matchmaker Goldie Ahearn succeeded in landing Mike Getteson, 220-pound Lithuanian, to supplant Mike Miller as an opponent for Ivan ("Hotcha") Vakturoff in one of the 30-minute specials.

Fearful that Miller would not stack up advantageously against the massive Russian, Ahearn instigated a search for a weightier foeman. Not until late yesterday, however, was he fortunate enough to make connections.

Rivaling Vakturoff in showmanship and color is August ("Popeye") Benkert, tattooed strong man, who grapples Louis Allarvi in another short subject. In the main supplementary attraction to the twin topliners involving Dan Koloff and Jim Heslin and Lee Wycoff and Charley Leahman, popular Danny Winters locks up with smiling Pat Riley.

Ladies accompanied by male escorts will be admitted at half price except at ringside.

Cubs' Win Streak Stopped by Cards

Hallahan Is Effective as Seven-Game March Is Halted, 7 to 1.

Chicago, May 1 (A.P.).—Wild Bill Hallahan was plenty wild today, but he was as good as he was wild and the world champion St. Louis Cardinals cracked the Chicago Cubs' sevengame winning streak with a 7-to-1 victory in the final game of the series.

Hallahan gave ten bases on balls, but he had so much stuff that the Cubs made but three singles. The walks had Hallahan in trouble on several occasions, but the world champions pulled him out with four double-plays. They also made two errors, one of which led to the Cubs' only run.

Field of 300 Golfers to Compete

First Medal Round in Army-Navy Tourney Tomorrow.

Five Sixteens Qualify Match Play on Thursday.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

THE spring invitation golf tournament of the Army-Navy Club will begin tomorrow with a qualification round, followed by another qualification round for the remainder of the field on Wednesday. Notwithstanding the fact that the announcement of the Army-Navy dates, the Columbia and Congressional Clubs interposed counter attractions—the Columbia with a boosters' tournament tomorrow, in which every member of the club has been urged to participate, and the Congressional Club with an all-day gala opening event on Wednesday—the list of 300 entries for the Army-Navy tournament insures a success for the competition.

Five Sixteens to Qualify.

Five sixteens will qualify and there will be prizes for the winner, runner-up and consolation in each sixteen, as well for the player with the low gross score in the qualification round. The pairings and times of play are as follows:

SERIES OF DISASTERS UPSETS KENTUCKY DERBY DOPE

Outstanding Candidate Lacking

Saturday Race Open One Due to Injuries, Defeats.

Field of 15 to 20 Is Expected to Face the Starter.

By GEORGE KIRKSEY.

CHICAGO, May 1 (U.P.).—With disaster laying a heavy hand on the leading contenders, Kentucky Derby speculation has been thrown into complete confusion six days before the fifty-eighth running of the historic horse race at Churchill Downs next Saturday.

Consider the following events before you try to pick the winner:

Top Flight, winter book favorite, beaten for the first time in her career and finishing in fourth place behind Universe, Economic and Curacao in the Wood Memorial at Jamaica.

Burning Blaze, second choice, cut down in winning a 6½-furlong race at Churchill Downs and eliminated from the Derby.

Evening, a filly not eligible for the Derby, showing her heels to nine Derby eligibles in the Chesapeake Stakes at Havre de Grace.

Springsteel, victor over Tick On earlier in the week, running tenth in the Chesapeake Stakes.

Liberty Limited, ranked as one of the five leading contenders, becoming a doubtful starter, because of a reported mishap in training.

Appears to Be Wide Open Race.

The aftermath of these unexpected happenings has left the Derby a wide open race with bookmakers, betters and experts bewildered. The defeat of Top Flight in her first start as a 3-year-old after winning seven straight races as a juvenile may eliminate C. V. Whitney's filly from the starting field.

JOE AND ASBESTOS

(Watch Sunday's Post for New Secret Code)

—By Ken Kling

Saturday's code horse won again. Asbestos has given out eleven code horses so far. Seven won, three were second, one third, and a five-dollar flat bet shows a profit of $38.50. New Sun ran third at $3.90, so the roll lost five cents and is now $ 20.15. 29 out of the last 31 picks finished in the money.

Front Royal, Va., May 1.—The Front Royal All-Stars won their seventh consecutive victory here today at the expense of the Miller Roamers of Washington, D. C., by the score of 4 to 0. The fielding of the All-Stars was little short of sensational, with McCracken making the feature catch in left field.

AT THE POST

with Bill Bennings

DEAR AL, PIMLICO RACE TRACK.

Here we are, boy. Back to the Hilltop—the Preakness—the jumping races—the sprawling falls—the ancient clubhouse—the street cars along the backstretch—the wise guys at the sixteenth pole—the million taxis—the billion tips—the city track. Beautiful women and handsome men will be here today. They will come to enjoy the sport. Too bad enjoyable days at the track so generally are judged by the amount one takes or leaves. But that's what makes racing as they told me when my winner closed at 12-1 on the odds board and netted me a $14 mutuel.

Al, if you really mean to wager, these have more than ordinary chances for today. BILL.

FIRST RACE—I see the first race between CRUISING and GALLIC. The former draws his backing from a brilliant showing in the Aberdeen stakes, when he finished a length behind Cattail for the rich purse. It was CRUISING'S first test. GALLIC'S last was a beaut, even better than the chart shows. Keltwick bumped this colt near the finish, as he was going fastest of the group. May make it tough for the tough one if he escapes interference today. HAPPY ANNE is third choice.

SECOND RACE—Taking condition over class in the jumping race. HUON JOY and MUSKOGEE took the brush routes in Agua Caliente during the winter. They failed to beat a whole lot out there, but should have something on animals making their first starts of the season. Both shipped well. MOONSTRUCK to take third money.

THIRD RACE—SIR BYRON can beat this kind. His last effort behind Squeeze Play did not find him getting all the best of the racing luck. At that, he succumbed by only a length. May escape trouble today and romp home. THE DOCTOR is a fast stepper, and is dangerous. YOUR FLAG, with a touch of class, for third.

FOURTH RACE—ACAUTAW is another which had a rough trip last out. This Trojan miss won twice on heavy tracks at Bowie before failing to figure in the Aberdeen. There may not be a pile-up after the start today as was the case in the Aberdeen. Seems the best. DROMBO finished with a burst of speed at the Graw, which makes him a contender here. May be finding racing legs earlier. CANTORIA is well thought of and has proved speedy.

FIFTH RACE—BRAVE AND BOLD, LADFIELD and LADINO or just the reverse from the way they finished when this trio met at Bowie. BRAVE AND BOLD and LADFIELD have improved since that race. LADINO has been working well. Busted figures right along with this group.

SIXTH RACE—ROYAL RUFFIAN is a consistent animal which seems to thrive on work. Hasn't had a long rest for some time, but is a hard horse to beat. See him ahead of COLOSSAL, with the Man o'War disappointment, WAR, in third place.

SEVENTH RACE—Still believe that DUNFERN is ready despite that showing the other day. SYRIAC gets in cheaper company and may earn a purse. REDCLIFFE seems outclassed, but possesses enough speed for a money chance.

F STREET THEATER POLICIES TO CHANGE ON FRIDAY, MAY 13

Palace Stage and Screen Show to Be Transferred Then to Fox.

"GRAND HOTEL" FILM TO BE AT COLUMBIA

Loew Will Have Choice of Four Major Producing Companies' Work.

By NELSON B. BELL.

The changes in policy affecting the Fox, Palace and Columbia Theaters, by reason of the assumption last Friday of the twenty-year lease of the Fox Theater by Loew, Inc., will become effective Friday, May 13, according to information which became available yesterday.

On that date the policy of combination screen and stage entertainment now in vogue at the Palace will be transferred to the Fox, with the Loew stage units supplanting the Fanchon & Marco "Ideas," which thus become automatically eliminated from Washington's amusement scene.

Simultaneously with this move the Columbia's present policy of exclusively sound-screen programs will become effective at the Palace. This will result in the discontinuance of the Palace Theater orchestra and leave Loew's Fox Theater the only stage presentation house on F street.

"Grand Hotel" at Columbia.

Also on Friday, May 13, as was exclusively predicted in The Post of last Thursday, the Washington "road show" engagement of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's picturization of Vicki Baum's famous novel and stage play, "Grand Hotel," will be inaugurated at Loew's Columbia Theater, instead of in one of the Capital's legitimate playhouses, as was rumored.

"Grand Hotel," it will be recalled, is the picture in which virtually the entire roster of M-G-M stars is utilized—Greta Garbo, John and Lionel Barrymore, Lewis Stone, Joan Crawford, Jean Hersholt, Wallace Beery and numerous others.

The engagement at the Columbia will be inaugurated with the matinee performance on May 13. All seats during this indefinite engagement will be reserved and the scale of prices will be 50 cents, 75 cents, $1 and $1.50 for night performances. The two daily presentations will be at 3:30 and 8:30 p. m. The box-office sale of tickets will open next Monday, but mail orders are now being accepted and filled in the order of their receipt.

Subsequent Columbia Policy.

Following the run of "Grand Hotel," the Columbia, instead of becoming a second-run house, will present class "C" first-run pictures at a popular scale of admissions. The second-run contracts for practically all of the film product released in Washington are held by the Warner Brothers, owner of the most extensive chain of neighborhood motion-picture houses in the District.

This realignment not only represents one of the most important developments in the history of the motion-picture in the National Capital, but redounds directly to the benefit of the amusement seeker by making available to the Loew interests the choice of four major producing companies for their first-string houses, namely, Paramount, United Artists, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and Fox.

The initial bills which will mark the May 13 inaugural of actual operative control by the new regime are as yet tentative—except, of course, the special engagement of the "Grand Hotel" at the Columbia.

Announcement of the introductory bills, managerial personnel and other details will be made public upon arrival in Washington today of Joseph R. Vogel, assistant to Col. E. A. Schiller, vice president in charge of theater operations for Loew, Inc.

KITTY COSTELLO'S DAUGHTER FOUND

Three Still Held After Child Is Discovered at Home of Baltimore Kin.

Eleven-year-old Isabel Wolf, daughter of the former Kitty Costello, celebrated female dry agent, was located by Washington detectives last night at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Lucretia Ritz, in Baltimore. She had been reported missing from the home of her mother, who is now Mrs. Severo Wolf Julia.

The detectives, accompanied by Mrs. Julia, decided to canvass relatives in Baltimore and Mrs. Ritz was the first kin of the child visited. Advices from Baltimore were to the effect that the child claimed to have been beaten by her mother and that this impelled her to seek shelter with her aunt Saturday morning.

Charles A. Haidt, 26-year-old construction worker, his wife of the same age, and Marshall Beasley, 27, a friend of the former, were still being held by police last night for questioning in connection with the child's disappearance. Haidt is said to have admitted to police that he took the Wolf girl and another girl for a ride Friday afternoon.

Haidt has claimed that the girl left his car at Sixth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest Friday afternoon and ran down the street when Mrs. Haidt took her to task for being in company with the construction worker.

Haidt's wife and Beasley were held for investigation after they appeared to inquire as to why Haidt, previously arrested, was being detained.

No explanation as to the whereabouts of the child through Friday night until Saturday morning was available early this morning. Detectives J. O. Patton and C. E. Lewis were reported en route here with the erstwhile missing girl and the mother.

Policeman Adopted As Dog Quits Truck

Animal Which Took Possession of Delivery Car, Is Coaxed Away.

A police dog with possessive instincts last night took undisputed occupancy of an ice cream truck and then adopted Patrolman C. K. Culver.

A frantic driver who had been chased from the ice cream truck at Thirty-sixth and Garfield streets northwest, called upon police for aid in dislodging the unwelcome tenant. The ferocious aspect of the animal drove away more timid persons who were considering means to repossess the truck.

Culver made friends with the dog. The animal refused to leave him; nor could he dodge the dog. There was nothing left for Culver to do but take the dog with him in his patrol car. At an early hour this morning no one had succeeded in approaching within 10 feet of Culver's car, not even the sergeant.

Man Is Struck on Head; Attacker Flees in Car

Clyde M. May, jr., 21 years old, of 1429 Columbia road northwest, was treated at Emergency Hospital yesterday for a lacerated scalp suffered in an altercation with an unidentified white man early yesterday in front of the Kennedy-Warren Apartments on Connecticut avenue.

After striking May on the head with a blunt instrument, the assailant escaped in an automobile and a police look-out was broadcast for him. May was allowed to return to his home after treatment.

Car Thief, 17, Taken Again; Was on Leave

Detective Sergt. Frank Alligood, the ace of the automobile squad, has a remarkable memory for license numbers and faces.

When he saw a familiar face in an automobile near Fourteenth and I streets northwest yesterday, he stopped the car. Out stepped Bernard Rhine, 17 years old, of the National Training School for Boys.

Alligood arrested him last year for stealing cars and he was sent to the training school. He had obtained leave yesterday, to visit his parents and allegedly was in the act of driving away with an automobile owned by Richard E. Depenbrock, of 2015 Nineteenth street northwest, when Alligood apprehended him. He was returned to the training school.

Women Criticize B. & O. Furloughs

Fight Planned to Prevent Similar Action by Government.

A resolution asking the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad to reconsider its action in giving furloughs to married women employes whose husbands are working and a statement that similar dismissals by the Federal Government would promote immorality and break up numberless homes featured a meeting yesterday of the National Woman's Party.

Eight women from Baltimore who were recently furloughed indefinitely because their husbands were working were present at the meeting. The resolution asked Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore & Ohio, "for a reconsideration of the railroad's action against the social structure through sex discrimination against married women in the enforced furloughs imposed upon married women."

A special meeting of married women in the Federal service will be held next Sunday to protest against the dismissal of women whose husbands are employed. The meeting yesterday also adopted a resolution urging President Hoover to work for passage of the equal rights amendment, which will prevent such action.

Mrs. E. M. Calvert Rites to Be Today

Native of Maryland Had Lived in Washington for 26 Years.

Funeral services for Mrs. Eleanor Mackubin Calvert, widow of Charles Baltimore Calvert, who died in her apartment at the Stoneleigh Court Apartments Saturday afternoon, will be held at the residence this afternoon at 3 o'clock. Interment will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Mrs. Calvert was born at Strawberry Hill, near Annapolis, Md., on October 18, 1840, and had been a resident of this city for the last 26 years. She was a charter member of the Maryland Line Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution; of the Maryland Chapter, Colonial Dames of America; of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, the Magna Charta Dames, the Maryland Society of Washington, and others.

She is survived by four daughters, Mrs. Henry Walter Lilly, of Fayetteville, N. C.; Mrs. Thomas Humphreys Spence, of College Park, Md.; Mrs. W. D. Nelson Thomas, of Baltimore, Md., and Mrs. George Calvert, of this city, and three sons, Richard C. M. Calvert, of Oxford, N. C.; George H., jr., and C. Baltimore Calvert, of this city.

SPEEDWAY BLOOMS ATTRACT THOUSANDS

Wind and Rain Fail to Mar Beauty of Blossoms Seriously.

With the double blossom cherry trees in the peak of their bloom yesterday, thousands of motorists drove around the speedway in the late afternoon to view the last of these famous blooms for this season.

Little difficulty was experienced with the traffic, aceording to Capt. Ray C. Montgomery of the Park Police, probably due to the fact that the Highway bridge again was closed to traffic entering the city and all except buses and trucks were rerouted over the Arlington Memorial Bridge.

It was thought at first that the wind and rain storm early yesterday morning would ruin the blooms, but only a few of the blossoms were blown away. Unless a stronger storm develops, they will last until the middle of the week.

Very few pedestrians were around the speedway, due probably to the slightly inclement weather and skaters around the Lincoln Memorial were conspicuous by their absence.

The weather forecast for today is fair and cooler with warmer temperatures for tomorrow. There was a drop of ten degrees, 66 to 56, from 8 o'clock to 10 o'clock last night. The 56-degree mark was the lowest temperature since midnight Saturday. The precipitation for the 24-hour period ending at 8 o'clock last night was 85 one hundredths of an inch.

Spectators Alarmed by Park Nudist

The unbelieving eyes of spectators were rubbed in amazement yesterday as they watched the figure of a nudist gamboling daintily among the bushes and trees in Rock Creek Park, near Morrow drive and Boulder Bridge.

Shyly the nudist peeped from behind the bushes and then tripped tiptoe, like a wood nymph, to the gurgling waters of the creek and timidly dipped his big toe into its chilly waters.

Then he shouted frantically that three persons were drowning in the creek. Aid came. He laughed and danced about through the bushes, gracefully skipping over stones. Then he gamboled gayly in the waters.

The offended sensibilities of motorists caused a call to be sent to police. Park Policeman W. R. Lutz had difficulty in getting a grip on his quarry, but finally brought him under control. A blanket was swathed about his shivering form and he was taken to the Sixth Precinct Station and charged with intoxication and violation of park ordinances prohibiting bathing.

Youthful Auto Robin Hoods Seized While Purloining Car

Two youthful automobile thieves, with a hint of Robin Hood in their tactics, were apprehended yesterday morning by a pair of Sixth precinct policemen as the former tinkered with a car they were about to purloin, while the motor of another stolen car purred nearby, ready for a getaway.

The policemen—Privates S. W. Caw and H. A. Cheney—soon discovered that one of the machines was that of Edward A. Murray, District pawn inspector, of 5235 Eighth street northwest, while the other was that of Charles W. Leigh, 1102 Sixteenth street northwest. The boys were caught at Fourth and Decatur streets northwest.

Police found that the boys had been responsible for five other cases of unauthorized use of other persons' cars. All of these victims reported that their machines had been returned with the tanks containing more fuel than they did before the cars were missed.

Upon questioning, the boys admitted that they felt some reparation should be made for the loss of the use of the machines to the owners and so they had siphoned gasoline from larger machines. Seven charges of unauthorized use of automobiles were placed against the boys and they were sent to the Receiving Home, pending disposition of the cases.

SLUMP LAID TO WAR AT JUSTICE SESSION FESTIVAL SERVICES

Fess and Bishop Freeman Heard at Cathedral Prior to Parley Today.

PRESIDENT WILL SEND MESSAGE OF GREETING

Rabbi Simon and Col. Grant Among Those to Figure in Assemblies.

The present world-wide depression is a direct result of the loss of life and property damage and waste of the World War, declared Senator Simeon D. Fess, of Ohio, vice chairman of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission, at the festival services yesterday afternoon at the Washington Cathedral, for the American Conference on International Justice which will convene this morning.

The Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, who also spoke yesterday, urged that a combined effort of churches, government and public opinion be made to bring about the effective realization of world peace, and that all faiths, Catholic, Jewish and Protestants, should make the vision of world peace the holy task of religion.

He pointed out that President Woodrow Wilson, who is buried at the Cathedral, made his chief objective, in his administration, the achievement of peace among nations.

Suggests Peace Method.

The creation of peace machinery through justice that would settle all international differences by pacific means, was urged by John J. Esch, former Interstate Commerce Commissioner and president of the American Peace Society. He also outlined the aims of the American Peace Society, which started its annual conference on the establishment of international justice with the Cathedral service.

Senator Fess outlined the ideas of George Washington on international peace and declared that the United States is the leader in endeavoring to accomplish this goal of a world without wars.

Part of the program for the assemblies will be as follows:

An invocation will be delivered by Rabbi Abram Simon at the opening assembly today followed by an address of welcome by Dr. Luther H. Reichelderfer, president of the Board of District Commissioners. A message from President Hoover will be read at this session.

Col. Grant to Preside.

Col. U. S. Grant will preside at the session tonight at which addresses by Dr. Albert Bushnell Hart, Wade H. Ellis and Dr. Francis P. Gaines, will be delivered.

The third general assembly tomorrow will be opened by an invocation by the Rev. James Shera Montgomery, chaplain, House of Representatives. Ira A. Campbell, Dr. Magnus W. Alexander, and Assistant Secretary of Labor W. W. Husband will be the speakers at this session.

The fourth general assembly tomorrow night will be presided over by William Tyler Page. At this assembly Representative J. Charles Linthicum, Senator Joseph T. Robinson and Representative Andrew J. Montague will talk.

Other Assemblies.

The Rev. U. G. B. Pierce will deliver the invocation at the fifth general assembly Wednesday morning, followed by addresses by Oscar T. Crosby, Dr. Justin Miller and Prof. Philip C. Jessup.

At the sixth general assembly Wednesday night, Undersecretary of State William R. Castle, Prof. Edwin M. Borchard and the Rev. Edmund A. Walsh are listed as speakers.

The Rev. Russell J. Clinchy will open the seventh general assembly Thursday morning with an invocation. Dr. Edward C. Wynne, William P. McCracken, jr., and Harold G. Moulton will deliver addresses.

A final banquet will be held at 7:30 o'clock Thursday night with Representative James M. Beck presiding, at which Secretary of Labor William N. Doak, Representative Ruth Bryan Owen and Dr. Elon H. Hooker will be the speakers.

Cathedral Tomb of Dewey Center of Manila Day Rites

50 Children Bearing Flowers Lead Procession on Mount St. Alban in Annual Commemoration Service for American Naval Hero.

Manila Day was commemorated at Washington Cathedral yesterday in a picturesque pilgrimage of 50 children, who marched in procession to the tomb of Admiral and Mrs. Dewey in Bethlehem Chapel and placed a wreath and flowers there in token of the anniversary.

The procession was led by Miss Emily Beale McLean, grandniece of Admiral and Mrs. Dewey, who carried a beautiful wreath of smilax and white carnations, tied with Navy colors of blue and gold. Miss McLean had as flag bearers two small boys, Spencer Lee Hart, jr., third cousin of Gen. Robert E. Lee, and Henry Suydam, jr., grandson of the late Maj. Gen. George Barnett, U. S. M. C. Among the children in the procession carrying flowers to place alongside of the wreath were boys and girls from Navy families, children of staff members of The Washington Post and children of Washington Cathedral staff members.

As the children entered Bethlehem Chapel, they were met by the Rev. Dr. G. Freeland Peter, canon and chancellor of Washington Cathedral. After the wreath and flowers were placed a service followed. In his brief talk the Rev. Dr. Peter told the children of Dewey's valor and service to his country and urged on them a love of their flag and their country.

In the congregation which witnessed the touching ceremony were parents and friends of the children participating, including Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean, the Rev. Dr. Albert Lucas, headmaster of St. Alban's School and Mrs. Lucas, Edwin N. Lewis, executive secretary of Washington Cathedral and Mrs. Lewis; Miss Georgie Todd, Mr. and Mrs. Roland Davies, Mrs. Laura V. Dann and Miss Lillian Dann while a number of pilgrims visiting the city came to share in the commemoration of the Nation's naval hero.

This annual procession of children bearing flowers on Manila Day to the tomb has been arranged by the Woman's Naval Service for the last two years, in response to an expressed wish of Mrs. Dewey in her lifetime, in which she stated, "I want Admiral Dewey's grave to be where the children can walk easily to it and lay flowers there, and with innocent aspirations try to imitate his simplicity, integrity and valor."

The Manila Bay Society, composed of officers who were with Dewey in the famous battle on May 1, 1898, placed a beautiful wreath on the Dewey tomb earlier in the day. The wreath was placed by Brig. Gen. Dion Williams, U. S. M. C., who raised the first American flag at Manila on May 3, 1898, upon order of Admiral Dewey.

LAW NOT NECESSARY FOR TRUE CHRISTIAN, PREACHER DECLARES

Rev. Carl Rasmussen Says Real Believer in God Does Not Need Restraint.

ASSERTS MAN RESENTS CURBS ON HIS DESIRES

Life Is Lifted to New Plane When One Can Say Christ Liveth in Him.

"The true Christian is the truest kind of an anarchist," said the Rev. Carl C. Rasmussen, preaching yesterday morning at the Luther Place Memorial Church.

The topic of Mr. Rasmussen's sermon was taken from the twenty-fifth verse of the first chapter of James, "The Perfect Law of Liberty."

"It is not that he rebels against the law. On the contrary, he does not need law to make him do right," the speaker said.

"Supplanting the Old Testament dispensation of law by the New Testament dispensation of grace in no way tones down the moral requirements of which the law speaks. To covet, to kill, to steal, to commit adultery, to take the name of the Lord in vain, to neglect the proper place of religion in life is as much a sin as ever.

Contemplates No Relaxing.

"The Pauline declaration that we are no longer under the law does not contemplate the relaxing of the requirements of nobility. It rather recognized that none had been able to live up to the law, and proclaimed a superior way to reach a righteousness that had been beyond man's powers.

"The present rebellion against law in this country is no new phenomenon. Denunciation of the prohibition, law, for instance, is only a specific illustration of a prevalent human habit. Man always resents the intrusion of such laws as a curb to his particular desires. The unpopularity of law is notorious.

God Also Is Insistent.

"We, therefore, believe that God is as insistent as society that men must live up to the noblest law. The Christian is not liberated from the demands of righteous law. His perfect law of liberty means, rather, that the law in no way constrains him. He feels no coercion because he is ruled by an indwelling spirit that gives him joy in doing right whether it be commanded or not.

"This is the new birth of which Jesus spoke. This is the meaning of conversion. When men can say, with the apostle, 'It is no longer I that live, but Christ that liveth in me,' they have found life lifted to a new plane on which the doing of right is not obedience to law but the fruit of the Spirit. It is the glorious freedom of the children of God. It is the 'perfect law of liberty.'" Mr. Rasmussen concluded.

DANGERS OF LIFE'S STORMS STRESSED

Christ Is Urged as Captain of Ship of Life in Sermon by Rev. H. A. Kester.

"There is no use of deceiving ourselves, for every one must face the storms of life," declared the Rev. H. A. Kester, preaching yesterday morning at the Congress Street Methodist Protestant Church. The Rev. Mr. Kester's topic was, "The Soft South Wind." He said, in part:

"The Apostle Paul urged most strongly against the voyage, but the captain thought he knew much better than Paul. So when the sun came out and the soft south wind started to blow, the command was given to start. They soon found their mistake and that Paul was right.

"Our lesson is the special danger of the soft south winds. Human life has its climatic changes much like the weather on the sea; that the weather is fair, that the sun is shining today is no sign that it will continue on the morrow. It is rather an indication that it will not. Many people think lightly about the building up of a strong character, because their life seems to be sunny, and the soft south winds make their voyage pleasant. They are hedged about by father or mother or friends with youth and health and it is hard for them to believe that their sea, the sea they are sailing, can be swept by a tempest and the frail boat driven before the storm.

Life's Storms Are Test.

"Any kind of a boat can make a good showing in fair weather; the test comes in the storms. So long as we are young and strong, friends and good fortune face us, the soft winds fill our sails and the waves and the current with us, we do not really know ourselves. It is when we make our way in the gale, when health fails and money gone, our friends desert us, sorrow and wretchedness sweep over us, that we find out what we are made of."

"Be not deceived, however calm your sea has been, storms are sure to come. It is not whether you can do without God now, but can you do without Him in the storms and struggles, when everything that seems to be before you now is against you then?

"You say you are young and strong and no one can take it from you, but there is nothing so frail and uncertain. You say you have money and the power to earn it. All is uncertain. I am not trying to discourage you. The facts are true. I am only trying to help you recognize these facts.

Views on Principles.

"Your ship is your principles, the solid structure on which you live and do your business day by day. Is my ship strong enough to weather the storm? A leaky ship will sooner or later go to the bottom.

"The dangers without are not so bad as the dangers within, for within one's heart they may carry the elements of destruction. I suggest Jesus as the captain of your boat, because He is the Lord of the waves and you need not fear. A captain with experience made perfect through suffering.

"If your boat needs repairing, He is the only one who can do a good job. There are many who thrust Him aside and take over the boat until, in their folly, the storms gather and threaten on all sides. We see many of them today. Even now Christ comes through the darkness of the storms saying, 'It is I, be not afraid.'" the Rev. Mr. Kester concluded.

The Secretary of War, Patrick J. Hurley, will be the guest of honor at the George Washington University alumni luncheon at the Mayflower Hotel Saturday. Justice James M. Proctor, of the District Supreme Court, will preside at the luncheon.

SACRIFICE OF JESUS IS HELD CALL TO LIFE

National Baptist Memorial Sermon Taken From Book of Acts.

"After the war a man in England took empty ammunition shells and made dinner gongs out of them. Just so Jesus, our Savior, took the conditions of sin and death in this world and by His sinless sacrifice made for us all a summons to life and peace and plenty," said the Rev. G. G. Johnson, preaching yesterday at the National Baptist Memorial Church.

The text of the Rev. Mr. Johnson's sermon was taken from the tenth chapter of the Book of Acts, "Jesus of Nazareth, Who went about doing good, Whom they slew, hanging Him upon a tree, Whom God raised up the third day. Through His name every one that believeth in Him shall receive remission of sins."

"So Peter taught and declared in the home of the Centurion at Cæsarea," the Rev. Mr. Johnson went on. "God is no respecter of persons," was his first word. "He that feareth Him and worketh in righteousness is acceptable to Him." No accident of birth, or incident of circumstance, can make God partial: He "is not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentence." A worshipping heart and an upright life are the fittest step toward salvation.

"The pattern for right living is in Jesus, 'who went about doing good,' in the power of God and against the works of the devil. We are all bound to say with Pilate, 'I find no fault in Him.' But the trouble is with us. Where He attains, we fall short; where He succeeds, we fail. We see not yet man as he ought to be, says the writer of Hebrews, 'but we see Jesus, who tasted death for every man, crowned with glory and honor.'

"So we find the power for right living and real life, as well as the pattern, in Jesus. 'Living, He loved me; dying, He saved me,' how we love that song! The power is here.

"Now as Cornelius and company heard these wonderful words, the like of which they had never heard before, their very souls thrilled with joy. They leaped to the promise of them, 'through His name every one that believeth in Him shall receive remission of sins.' It was like a call to dinner.

"No wonder those who heard Peter that day broke up his sermon with happy and immediate acceptance of the truth. You can end this sermon in the same way if you will," the Rev. Mr. Johnson concluded.

Dr. Bloom Reports On Church Merger

Returns From Christian and Congregational Convention.

Dr. W. Knighton Bloom, secretary of the Eastern division of the Congregational Church Extension Boards and the Commission of the Missions, has just returned from Burlington, N. C., where he attended the Southern convention of the Congregational and Christian Churches.

At the convention, Dr. Bloom said the entire ecclesiastical and missionary interests of the church organizations were merged. The united groups represent 422 churches of a combined membership of 43,506.

The convention was a meeting of a section of the general council of Congregational and Christian Churches which are located in every State of the Union and represent the largest group of denominations to come together into one organization.

Speed Nemesis Is Drafted For Police "Uplift" Job

Raymond Sinclair, Washington's ace speed policeman, went in for uplift work yesterday.

It happened like this:

"Lightning," the colored elevator man at police headquarters, was on his day off yesterday. Massing of special details at the police base against possible May Day trouble led to the need for transporting the men to upper floors.

Sinclair was one of the special motorcycle detail in reserve when a superior officer said:

"Which one of you men can run an elevator?"

Sinclair, ready for orders and confident that such an assignment would be very short, said:

"I can, sir."

To the jocular enjoyment of brother policemen, Sinclair shuttled the headquarters lift up and down for his entire eight-hour shift. Asked by reporters how he liked his new job, the traffic policeman responded with a fitting, though obvious, retort:

"Well, you know life has its ups and downs."
